Get more for your money with ntl.

If you're paying for a BT phone line, we've got a peach of a proposition for you. Switch to ntl, and for just a little extra we'll give you one of our phone lines – and a lot more besides.

Because £11.99 a month also gives you your cable TV rental, access to a whole range of TV channel packs, and the chance to upgrade to our digital TV service as soon as it's available in your area. Plus, with your phone line you get access to free local talk time,* national calls at local rates and the option of excellent value overseas call rates.† We'll even install it for free.

By the way, our phone service couldn't be simpler – national and local calls cost just 3p a minute during weekdays, 2p a minute on weekday evenings and 1p a minute at weekends. That means that national rates are 50% cheaper with ntl than with BT all weekend. (All calls are subject to a 4.9p connection charge.)††

Why pay extra for a BT phone line when you can have one of ours as part of your cable TV package? Call us today to make the switch. We think you'd be bananas not to.

Food for thought

Helen Lederer hates beetroot. You read it here first. 'I hate the way it bleeds into salad,' she says, with a shudder. 'Coleslaw stained with beetroot, uggghhh. And I'm not too fond of meat with veins, either.' There is, rest assured, a point to this conversation. For Lederer, the comedian who this month starts working on a new series of Absolutely Fabulous, is presenting a show called Butter Fingers, and I have asked her to identify the eating likes and dislikes that have remained with her since she was a girl growing up in south east London.

The happiest food-related memories from her childhood relate to her Czech grandmother, who lived in bourgeois Hampstead. 'She made cakes, and she used to ask us which cake we wanted. I remember it as an absolutely agonizing choice. There was cheesecake and plum cake and apple cake, and a German cake called gugelhumpf, all made with special ingredients that you could only get in Hampstead. She gave us croissants with ham long before they were trendy. And she did these amazing meringues, sealed with cream and dotted with chocolate drops.' This time Lederer shudders with ecstasy, 'Oh, my God, they were sheer heaven.'

As for Butter Fingers, a cooking with kids show, Lederer stresses that, 'It is not exactly Nigella Lawson territory, but we won't be making Rice Crispie cakes either. The idea is to make cooking fun, and to counter the terrible pressure on children these days to diet, which nobody worried about when I was young.' Each show will feature two children, and her own ten-year-old Hannah will get a turn. 'But she won't let me say that we're related. It embarrasses her deeply.'

Doo tune in to Rolf's big weekend

Some years ago a national newspaper despatched me to the Southport Flower Show to interview Rolf Harris – not the stuff of which Pulitzer prizes are made but a nice assignment nonetheless. Rolf (pictured with co-presenters Shauna Lowry and Rhodri Williams) was truly charming, and the unexpected revival of his career – sparked off by his recording of Led Zeppelin's Stairway to Heaven – thrilled him as much as, oh, I don't know, a little boy gaily playing each summer's day with his beloved wooden horse (incidentally, Margaret Thatcher chose Two Little Boys as one of her Desert Island Discs).

I travelled with him in his limo from Southport to Manchester Airport and by plane on to Heathrow, and he chatted merrily all the way. It was all very pleasant, except for one blow-fly in the ointment – his didgeridoo, a long and unwieldy beast with which he accidentally hit me (twice) and a woman passer-by. When she realized that she had been clobbered by a rogue didgeridoo she tapped her assailant on the shoulder, and said, 'Who do you think you are, Rolf Har ... oh!'

This month, Rolf puts aside his 'doo for his other love – animals. Join him for Rolf's Big Weekend, featuring the latest series of Rolf's Amazing World of Animals, exploring everything from Bee Gees star Robin Gibb's pet chinchillas to park rangers who police Queensland's Great Barrier Reef, as well as all manner of creatures, great and small, with two series of Animal Hospital.

The veteran American talk show host Maury Povich has an impeccable media pedigree – his father was the celebrated sports columnist Shirley Povich, who worked for the Washington Post for 75 years, from 1922 to 1997, until shortly before his death at the age of 92. 'In fact his last column appeared alongside his obituary,' says Povich Jr, who also started out as a sports writer. 'But unlike my father I found sports rather limiting. I preferred straight news reporting, in what were tumultuous times. The Vietnam War was going on, Martin Luther King and Bobby Kennedy had been assassinated, Watergate was just around the corner. That was a lot more stimulating to me than a locker room.'

In 1986 Povich was hired by Rupert Murdoch to host an acclaimed nightly magazine show called A Current Affair, but in due course he moved into the competitive world of daytime chat, where he now vies with the likes of Jerry Springer, Rosie O'Donnell and Ricki Lake for second spot in the ratings behind the all-conquering Oprah Winfrey. I ask him whether he admires Springer. He sidesteps the question with the agility of an old pro.

'I've known Jerry for a long time. He admits freely that his show is theatre. Mine is different. I like shows about conflict, but we don't permit physical violence like Jerry does. We try to help young people. We take them on the streets, we show them prostitutes and AIDS wards, we try to scare them into changing direction.'

And in so doing Povich has earned fame in his own right, rather than as the son of a famous father or the husband of a famous wife. For he is married to Connie Chung, the ABC news anchor and a favourite of talk show host David Letterman. 'Letterman loves my wife,' says Povich.

And what does Letterman think of him? 'He hates me. He is perhaps a little jealous of me, and he thinks my show is smarmy.'

LA lore

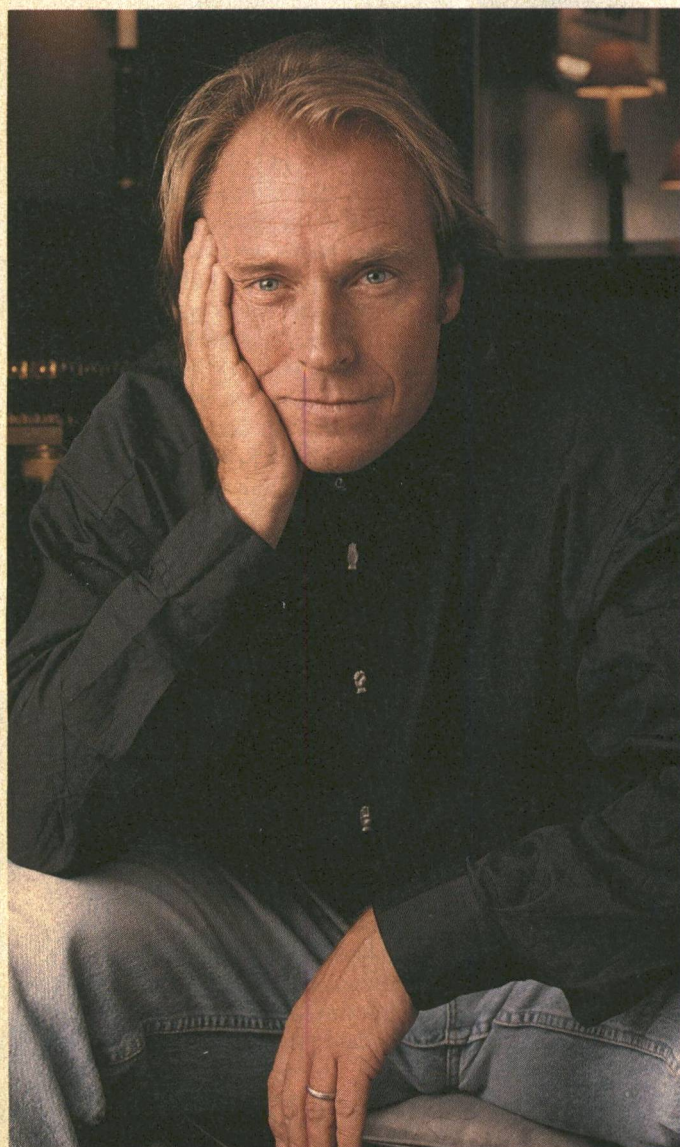

LA Law began in America in 1986 – and in Britain a year later. It had such an impact in America that there followed an enormous surge in applications to law school, although if all those prospective lawyers were expecting smart offices on a sun-kissed Californian boulevard, between falling into bed with beautiful clients, as Arnie Becker did seemingly every week, then doubtless some of them were disappointed.

The show spawned dozens of pale imitations, but I wonder whether it is now showing its age. I ask Corbin Bernsen, the Los Angeles-born actor who played Becker. 'The colours and tones of it have aged,' he says. 'Those offices had a lot of pastel colours whereas now there's more steel. But the content is still absolutely relevant, in fact even more so. One of my favourite cases dealt with a Christian Scientist couple who were willing to let their daughter die rather than have her treated medically, and there has recently been big controversy in the US about exactly that. Also, we dealt with capital punishment issues which are very resonant right now, in the case of [the Oklahoma bomber] Timothy McVeigh.'

Bernsen – happily married to English actress Amanda Pays, with four sons aged between three and 12 – cheerfully concedes that he owes his comfortable California lifestyle to LA Law. 'It changed my life drastically, and whenever I see [producer] Steven Bochco I tell him I will be forever grateful.'

However, he nearly didn't get the part. He read for it in New York, but was turned down. 'New York, at that time, was dark and wet, and I was in an unhappy marriage, cheating on my then-wife, rehearsing for a bleak Ibsen play, and I just didn't get it, didn't understand the character. Then I broke up with my wife and drove to LA, thinking, "I've got to chase this down." I remember taking a run on Mulholland Drive when a lovely long-haired girl in a Jeep drove by, and I stopped. I thought, "Yeah, I get it now." The character needed to be sunny, loving life. I managed to get back in and get the part.'

Rogues' gallery

Crime and hypnosis make for an unusual combination in Sky's forthcoming drama, Trance

BEHIND the lace curtains of a charming terraced house in leafy north west London, an underworld gang member is giving one of his partners in crime such a kicking, his spleen must surely be rupturing. As boot meets stomach, the sound is sickeningly realistic.

But mercifully, folks, it's all an act! Writer-director Joe Ahearne shouts, 'Cut,' actor John Light straightens out his crumpled body and jumps up, tossing the protective sandbags to one side, and Phil Davis's menacing grimace relaxes into a playful grin.

In fact, Davis, who's portrayed a few 'psychopathic, hideously violent, bad-tempered criminals' in the past, is the first to admit that he and his gang of cohorts in Sky's forthcoming drama

Trance, who steal a Goya from the National Gallery, are 'a bit bumbly, a bit out of their depth and not really very classy at all'.

Trance, set to air on Sky Premier this autumn, is a darkly comic, multi-layered, psychological thriller with a love triangle for added depth. As Susannah Harker, portraying manipulative hypnotherapist Sarah Lamb, explains: 'You are presented with things which are then turned on their head in unexpected ways. It's Being John Malkovich territory in a way.'

The robbery, by the way, goes swimmingly well. The newly discovered and priceless John the Baptist – a painting which, in reality, doesn't actually exist but was created in Goya's style by artist Sally Dray – is whipped from under the noses of security guards. But then Tony (Light), the gang's insider at the gallery who's 'holding' the painting, suffers a chilling attack of amnesia. He swears he can't remember where he's hidden it.

When violence and intimidation don't help, the brains of the outfit, Brendan (Neil Pearson), suggests an alternative way to jog Tony's memory: hypnotherapy.

'I've been to hypnotherapy in the past, I used it to help me stop smoking, so I knew the territory a bit,' admits Susannah. 'Sarah specializes in something called Neuro Linguistic Programming, which is a very clever use of language to persuade people to your way of thinking.'

Ahearne, who has directed episodes of This Life, has long wanted to write something that links hypnosis with crime. Of Sky's £2m production, he says: 'Once the people at the National Gallery had seen script pages, were satisfied that the art was an integral part of the story – not simply gangsters running through with guns – and we'd fulfilled their list of requirements, we filmed between 6.00pm and midnight over two evenings. It was obviously tightly controlled, a lot of security, but remarkably easy.'

● The big movies appearing on Front Row for your delectation over the coming months include Chicken Run, Mission: Impossible 2, The Patriot, Any Given Sunday and The Next Best Thing.

● When Pocahontas II: Journey to a New World premieres on Disney Channel soon, listen carefully to the voice of John Smith – it's not Mel Gibson you'll be hearing, as in the 1995 original film. Donal Gibson, Mel's younger brother, takes on the part in the sequel. See if you can spot the difference!

● Fans of Will and Grace, the multi award-winning US comedy series, can look forward to premiere episodes on Living later in the year. The hilarious lives of Will, Grace and their friends are continued in the third and fourth series, scheduled to show from September.

Reconstructing Charlie

Michael J Fox's departure could have spelt the end for hit sitcom Spin City.

But wayward actor Charlie Sheen seems to have found his niche, and the show is positively blooming, writes Joel Brady

HOLLYWOOD was stunned when Michael J Fox, one of its most beloved film and TV actors, was diagnosed with Parkinson's disease and quit his successful show, Spin City. And it wasn't just the public who believed the series could not continue without him.

Jeffrey Katzenberg, a partner in DreamWorks SKG, the studio that produces Spin City, admits his first instincts were to cancel the show. After all, Spin City was built largely around the appeal and real-life persona of 39-year-old Fox. His character, New York deputy mayor Mike Flaherty, could spout Reagan-era views on the strength of Fox's previous TV incarnation as the conservative Alex P Keaton in the 1980s sitcom Family Ties, and so get away with it.

Then someone thought of Charlie Sheen. Originally known, and highly respected, as an intense, dramatic actor in movies such as Platoon and Wall Street, he also had earned his comedy stripes in hits like Hot Shots! and Hot Shots! Part Deux. The big problem was 35-year-old Sheen's image, then in tatters after a series of well publicized events during which his judgment was poor, to say the least.

Spin City creator Gary David Goldberg decided, however, to try to take advantage of the public perception of Sheen. New York suddenly had a new deputy mayor, Charlie Crawford, described by Goldberg as 'a bad boy who's a good guy'.

tabloids, which had chronicled Sheen's every wrong move during his wayward days, predicted failure and said Heather Locklear, who joined Spin City shortly before Fox's exit, would not work with Sheen because of his colourful reputation.

But now, in what Katzenberg equates to 'a miracle', Spin City is thriving.

'Charlie comes through such a different door comedically,' Goldberg says.

'The whole energy of the [mayor's] office is now different. Basically, it's a classic American tale. It's Bill Clinton. There's a fascination with that guy, and Charlie has an inherent sweetness to him that enables him to walk out on that line.'

And as for Sheen himself?

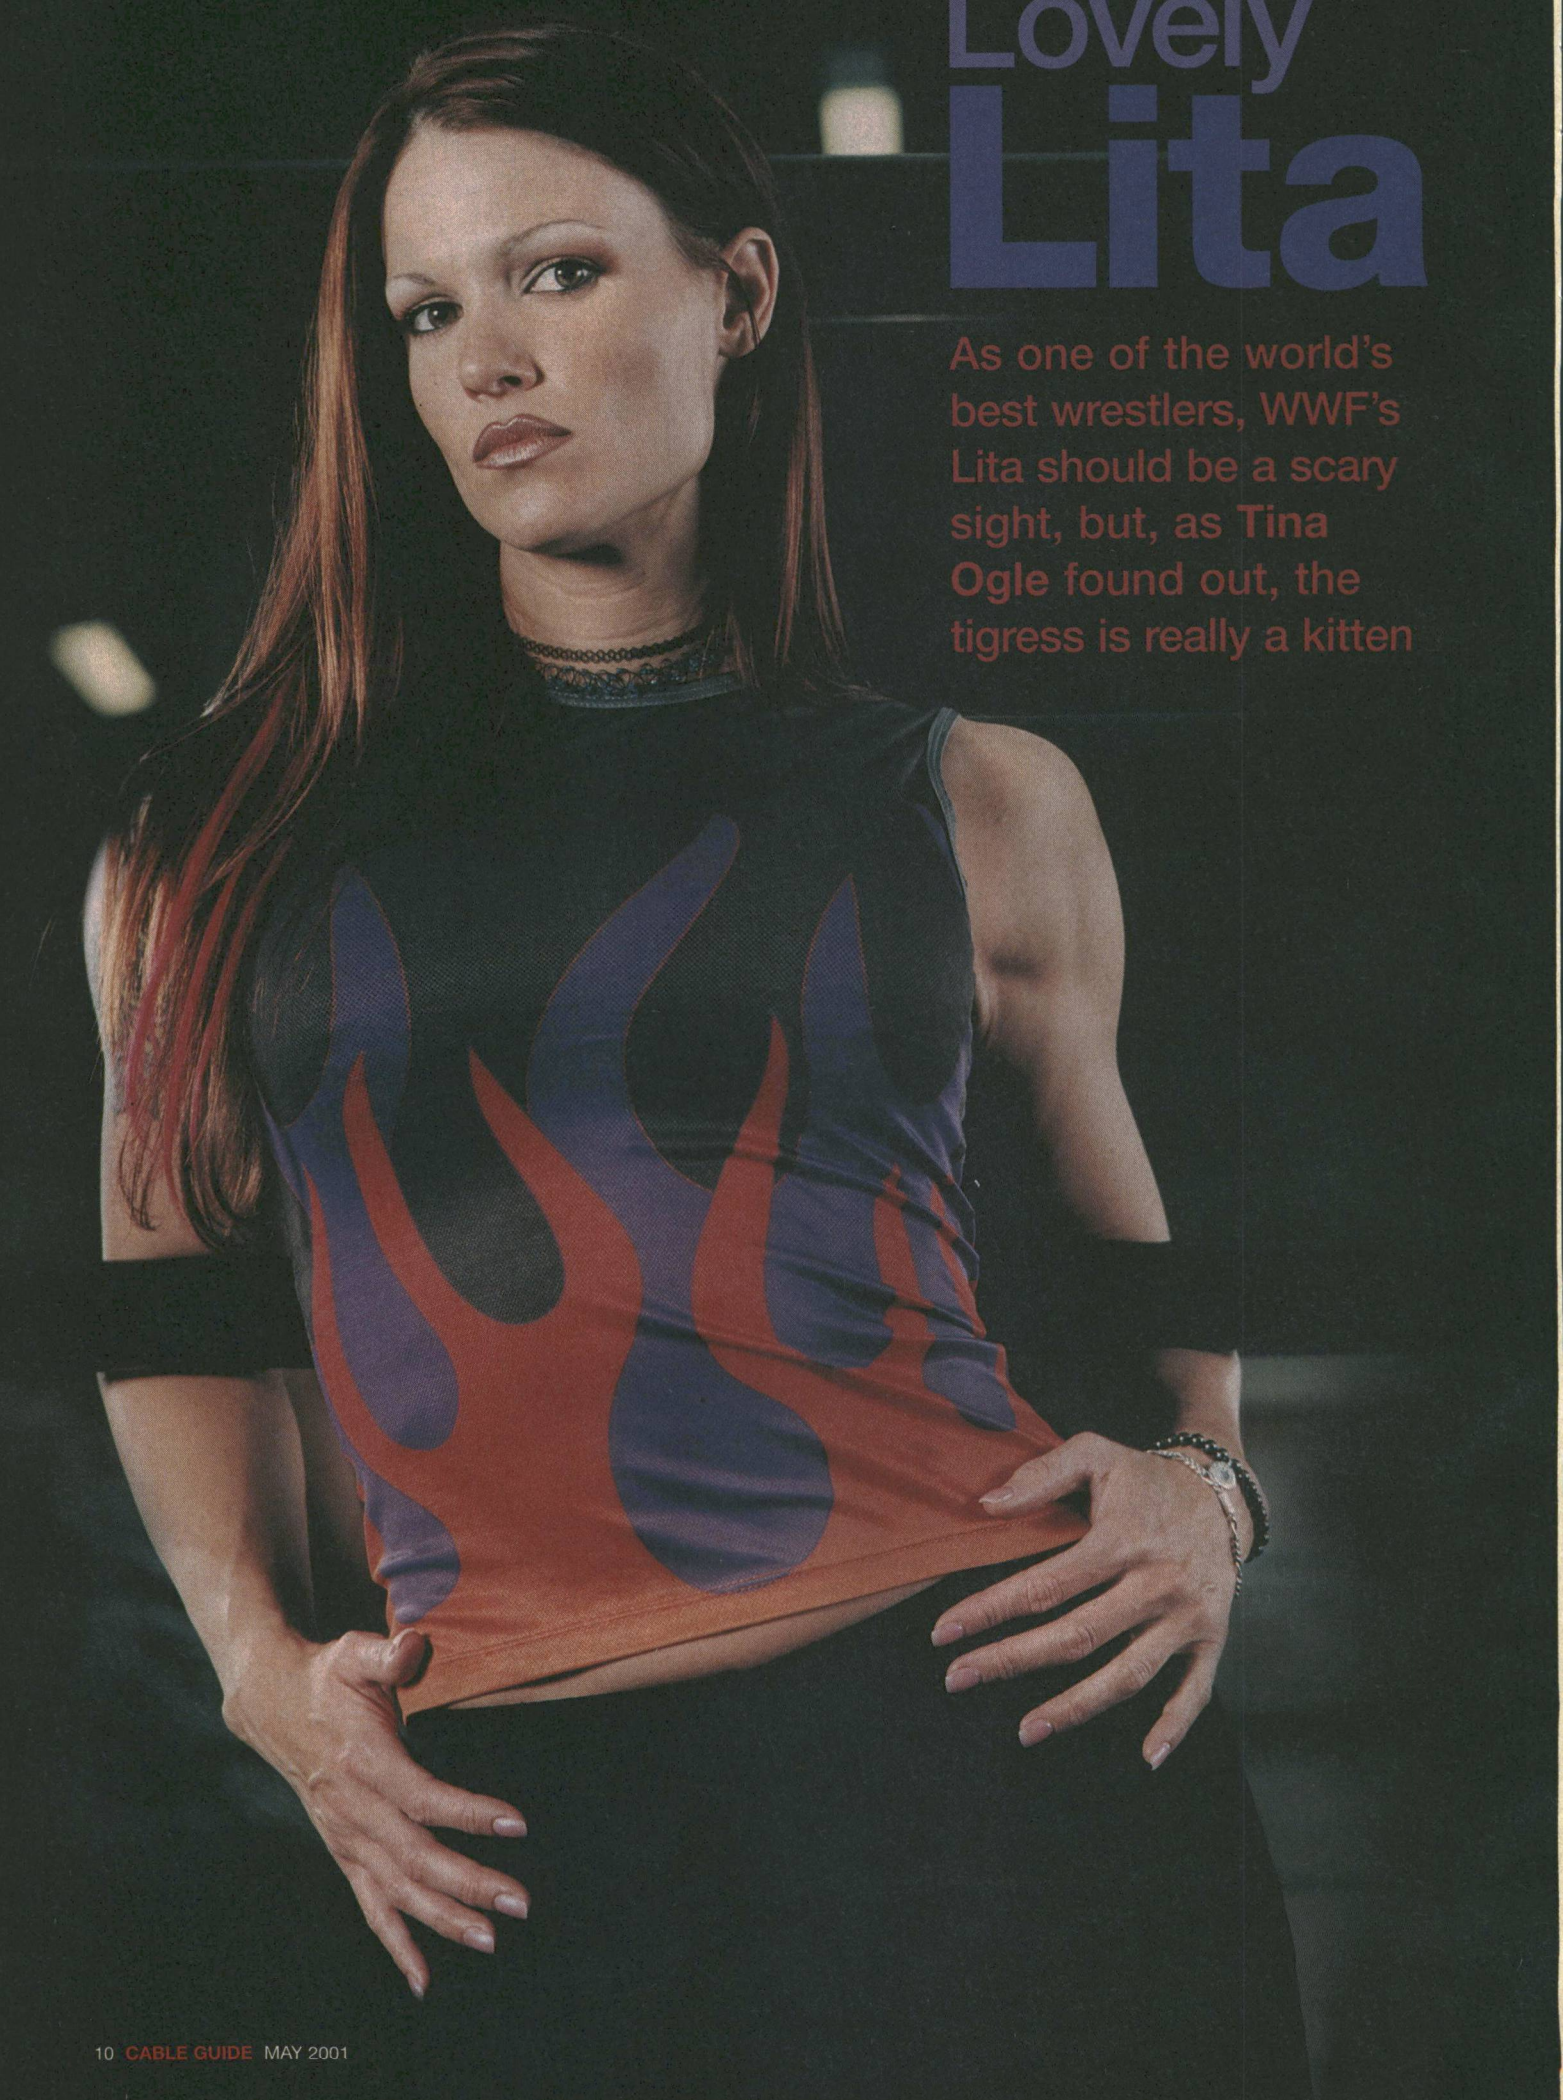

'I'm just happy to be back in the game,' he says gratefully. 'Whatever popularity or forgiveness that can be generated through this experience would be great. If it leads back into features, great. If it develops a whole new career in TV, that's great, too.'

Sheen admits he had seen Spin City only a few times before he was cast, but then watched every episode before 'jumping on the moving train'. His confidence was buoyed by the fact that he had help from Michael J Fox himself.

'He said that he felt he was leaving his baby behind with a very trusted guardian,' Sheen says. 'He was very supportive and he just couldn't have been nicer.'

Lovely Lita

As one of the world's best wrestlers, WWF's Lita should be a scary sight, but, as Tina Ogle found out, the tigress is really a kitten

LITA has struck terror into the hearts of her competitors with her spectacular wrestling moves, but today, as the leading 'ring babe' saunters into a gym in east London, it is her sweet smile and unassuming manner that strikes you first. The all-American redhead is in pussycat mode. Here to promote her forthcoming appearance in the WWF Insurrexion event in London, she shakes hands and says quietly 'Hi, I'm Amy.'

Born Amy Dumas in Florida in 1975, this rising WWF star only became interested in wrestling three years ago. 'I always used to think wrestling was stupid, then one day I kind of found my calling when I was watching it on TV with my boyfriend of that time. I suddenly thought, "Wow!" It didn't take me long to get interested in the whole deal.'

She took off for Mexico, having heard that was the best place to train, armed with her Let's Go Mexico guidebook, no contacts whatsoever and a dream. 'I bought a paper, found out where the best place was, took a cab down there and just started walking around to see who was in charge.'

Having learnt the basics – something that probably came quite easily to the athletic Dumas, who had already trained in judo and kickboxing – she returned to America to set about going professional. She went through several incarnations, including a stint as Angelica and Miss Congeniality, before she graduated from the Funking Conservatory II wrestling school in Florida in August 1999. With this auspicious academy on her CV, she turned into Lita, and went on to become WWF's most popular diva and the Women's Champion.

So what is the best bit about this super-charged, highly physical career? 'It's when you walk out and see all the people going wild. It's also great watching what you did, played back. The people only see one per cent of what you put in, you work so hard for that five minutes on TV, so it's good to see the finished product.'

Dumas used to follow a strict regime to

'I always used to think wrestling was stupid, then one day I found my calling when I saw it on TV. I suddenly thought, "Wow!"' stay in shape for what is a phenomenally demanding job. 'I used to work out my shoulders and abs on Mondays, then something else on Tuesdays and so on, and always drink a protein shake 45 minutes before a workout, but it got too hard.'

Her busy schedule has meant that she's had to be far more flexible in her training. 'I just have to do what I can, when I can. I try to do an hour a day and I use weights while I'm on the treadmill to maximize the time. My muscle mass is OK now, it's just a case of maintaining it.'

In case this all sounds too good to be true, Dumas does confess to one sin. 'Junk food is my biggest vice, especially late at night. I've never smoked, even though I used to hang out with bands, but sometimes on a Tuesday night, which is the end of the working week for me, I go out and have a glass of wine.' The Betty Ford Clinic is probably not looking at its next admission.

Aside from the fancy moves, including her trademark moonsault and a flurry of hurricanranas and flips, Lita is also famous for her raunchy attire. Various websites exist to satisfy an audience's desire to see pictures of her semi-clad. Low combat trousers over high thongs are her favourite outfit, but she claims that no one forced her into this sexy look. 'I totally choose what I wear, which is kind of a souped-up version of an everyday wardrobe.' This might be true on the beach in Rio de Janeiro, but she's serious. 'If I go shopping and I see something that I particularly like the colour of but not the way it looks, I'll cut it up. I'm not a seamstress, but I'll take a pair of scissors to anything I can find – that's my style.'

She's still only 26, but the demands that wrestling makes on her body means that Dumas can only sustain this career for so long. Already she's got some cartilage missing between vertebrae and some damaged discs. 'But you accept that as part of the job and the good times far outweigh the problems,' she says. 'Hopefully, I'll establish myself enough so that if my body does give out I can have a less active role.

'You want people to be so attached to you that you don't have to fall off the top of the cage for them to want to see you.'

She already has an action figure of herself and features in two PlayStation games, SmackDown! 2 and No Mercy, but she has no firm plans about what she'd like to achieve next. The cruel sea

Making a film about a recent real-life boating tragedy was quite a challenge for George Clooney and Mark Wahlberg. Interview: Garth Pearce

THERE was no place to hide when Hollywood stars took over the small fishing town of Gloucester, Massachusetts, to film The Perfect Storm. The movie is about the loss of six local fishermen and their boat, the Andrea Gail.

George Clooney, playing the boat's captain, Billy Tyne, and Mark Wahlberg, as crewman Bobby Shatford, were at first met with a mixture of suspicion and silence by the hardened fishermen and families who feared exploitation.

The film, based on the best-selling book by Sebastian Junger, is about one day in October 1991 when a lethal combination of three different weather fronts swept up 100-foot waves to create hellish conditions in the Atlantic. The desperation to make money from a good catch – the last of the season – drove the crew of the Andrea Gail into the mouth of the storm. Good sense did not prevail. Weather warnings were not properly heeded.

'There was a feeling that we might make these men look like suicidal idiots,' recalls Clooney. 'But that was far from the case. The script had the greatest regard for their bravery and their genuine love of the sea.'

'It also took an authentic look at the harsh realities of the fishing industry. There are fishing quotas and weather conditions to consider every day of your working life. And, once out in the ocean, there's no place to hide.'

But it was Wahlberg who did most to take the sting out of the situation. He moved into a room above the local pub, the Crow's Nest, where the men drank and enjoyed themselves before going out on their last fateful trip.

He befriended the mother of the character he was playing – tragically, she died before having a chance to see the film – and did much quiet research on the part. 'It was a highly sensitive subject,' he says. 'This wasn't something that happened 100 years ago. All the relatives and friends of the men who died were still around. I couldn't just go, "Hi, I am playing Bobby Shatford. Tell me about him."' "

Shatford's story is also typical of a fisherman's life in that he was desperate for money and signed up, reluctantly, for one last trip.

Boats are often owned by men who do not go to sea; they are rented to a skipper, who recruits a crew who will earn a percentage of fish sales after the long ocean trip of several weeks. The owner takes his rental, plus a share of the spoils.

Actress Diane Lane, who plays Shatford's girlfriend, Christina Cotter – the real Christina lives in Gloucester – says: 'This was probably the hardest role of my life. I could not be her, because I am acting a role and the film is not a documentary. But I knew that if I got it wrong, there were a lot of people who were going to tell me very quickly. I relied on the accuracy of the script and tried to concentrate on the great relationship which Christina obviously had with Bobby.'

All the cast agree that the three weeks spent in Gloucester were the toughest of the six-month shoot. They were filming in a 72-foot fishing boat, a sister ship to the Andrea Gail modelled to look like the original vessel, and filming sequences around the town itself.

The cast also agreed that it was Wahlberg, soon to be seen in the remake of Planet of the Apes, who felt most pressure. 'We were about an hour or so from my home area of Boston,' he says. 'I felt how they felt. I am a blue-collar guy who can appreciate what a tough working life can be like. I did not want to screw up.'

One of Wahlberg's toughest moments came when filming a scene on a choppy sea. 'I suddenly started to feel seasick on the very day I had most to say,' he recalls. 'I was throwing up between lines.'

'Clooney thought this was hilarious, for some reason. He is a great guy to work with, but just loves it when he spots a weakness. He was at me from that moment onwards. It was a good job it was near the end of the film.'

Most of the terrifying action scenes on the boat were filmed by director Wolfgang Petersen in a giant water tank at Warner Brothers studios in LA, and computer graphics added the mountainous waves.

Clooney, who was able to scrub down his handsome looks to make a convincing looking fishing boat captain, reflects: 'Those guys deserve every dollar of their money. They say, "Don't act with children or animals." You can add boats to that.'

Beach boy

The lengthy shoot for The Beach was dogged by controversy and danger, but Leonardo DiCaprio tells Garth Pearce it was all worth it

LEONARDO DICAPRIO, who took a year off to enjoy life after Titanic became the world's biggest box office hit, found himself in far deeper water on The Beach than he ever did on the doomed liner.

As he was engulfed by a rigorous routine in dangerous waters off Thailand's coast – he was committed to working 64 days of the 67-day shoot – he could have been forgiven for wondering whether his $20m pay day had been worth the risk.

The film, based on the best-selling book by Alex Garland, immediately hit problems when Thai demonstrators launched a bitter protest. They claimed that the beautiful location, Maya Beach, had been ruined by a film crew that uprooted plant life and bulldozed sand dunes in an attempt to convert it into Hollywood's idea of an island paradise.

DiCaprio, 26, was left to defend himself and he told me: 'From what I've seen, all the allegations are false. Tons of trash has been taken off the beach and it looks better than ever before. But my name became a symbol of what was supposed to have gone on.'

'It has hurt me. And it was upsetting, because I don't want to have a bad reputation, and be seen as someone who endorses what is destructive to the environment. I don't want people to think that I choose movies that are reckless.'

Protesters wore masks bearing Leo's photograph, on which fangs dripping blood were added. They brandished banners declaring: 'Don't Rape Our Beach, Leo' and 'Stop Killing Our National Park'.

It just added to the tension, since DiCaprio's days were far from easy. He spent a lot of time in his own cabin amid costume and make-up departments on the luxury 80-foot yacht, the Singa Lady, moored near Maya Beach.

He was up at 5.30am in his suite at the Cape Panwa Hotel and had a 45-minute speedboat ride to Singa Lady. He then remained, either working or waiting, until darkness. He was never back at the hotel before 8.00pm, at which time he made phone calls to his then girlfriend, 22-year-old model Kristen Zang, who was waking up in America.

He then had dinner sent up to his suite, where he played PlayStation with the 25-year-old French actor Guillaume Canet (Étienne), or went out with his bodyguards or actor friend Jerry Swindall (Sammy).

Garland of Eden

When 26-year-old Brit Alex Garland penned his debut novel The Beach in 1996, he had no idea it would become such a cult classic.

Published in 1997 without much fanfare, The Beach quickly became the book of the moment (especially for backpackers) largely by word of mouth.

The story of a young traveller who is given a map to a mysterious secret beach – the ultimate, unspoiled traveller's haven – and the subsequent 'Utopia' he finds there has been described as Apocalypse Now meets Lord of the Flies.

Garland, born in 1970, travelled to India when he was 17, and after leaving school, spent six months in Southeast Asia. Now he returns to Asia every year, spending most of his time in the Philippines, much of his experience of which was incorporated into The Beach.

He set the story in Thailand because: 'It's more of a Mecca for a certain kind of traveller, the kind of backpackers in the book. I wanted to write a book about a certain kind of traveller.'

The Beach, which Garland has described as 'partly autobiographical', remained on the best seller lists for more than a year, before Twentieth Century Fox and the makers of Trainspotting began developing the film, and has now been translated into more than 25 languages.

THE BEACH

a British backpacker, played by DiCaprio, who entertains fantasies about going through an experience comparable to the Vietnam War.

DiCaprio's character Richard, who in the film becomes an American, stays in a Bangkok hotel, where a heroin-addicted Scottish hippie (played by Robert Carlyle) tells him about a remote, mysterious beach off the Thai coast. The hippie commits suicide, but leaves a map revealing where the beach is.

He is accompanied by a French couple (played by Virginie Ledoyen and Guillaume Canet) in his search for the island. Once there, they find a suspicious, guarded community of young travellers, led by a woman, a sort of self-styled guru called Sal (Tilda Swinton).

The beach's secret is finally revealed. Far from being a peaceful, fun-loving atmosphere, it is on an island where marijuana is grown in huge fields, patrolled by armed guards.

DiCaprio, who used his character's name of Richard Lewis for security at the hotel and on all written material, was won over by The Beach, despite all the problems.

'I was a big fan of Danny Boyle before this film came about, after watching Trainspotting and Shallow Grave,' he says. 'I saw the type of film-making he does as unique and I wanted to be part of it.'

'It was an incredible experience, shooting on an island like that, but it was about work and more work.'

'My life was spent either on the boat or sleeping at the hotel. I did not even have a chance to see Bangkok.'

'But when I finally saw the results, The Beach was worth every one of the long days, the sleepless nights, the pain and the problems.'

He was in bed each night by 10.00pm. It was a sharp contrast to his year of parties and travel, during which he put on quite a paunch after all the good living.

He had spent time in the gym and was now looking good. But it did not help when he was badly stung by jelly fish.

He had been in the sea for several hours with actor Canet, filming a scene in which they swim for the idyllic beach. He was taken ill owing to the stings and forced back in to his cabin for an afternoon of rest. There was also a boating accident.

'The accident was far more frightening than the jelly fish,' reports DiCaprio. 'We were filming on a little bamboo boat that suddenly got caught up with currents. The waves started crashing down and we started to sink.'

'The next thing I knew was that all the equipment and film crew were out in the middle of the ocean. I realized that eventually someone would come and get us, but a lot of people were freaked out.'

Although The Beach was a big-budget movie made by Twentieth Century Fox, with a star name in DiCaprio, it was very much a British project. It was directed by Britain's Danny Boyle – he launched his successful career with Trainspotting – and produced by a Scot, Andrew Macdonald. The book, by Alex Garland, was about

To be perfectly Frank

KIM NEWMAN ON ...
FRANK SINATRA

The ultimate interpreter of songs, an Oscar-winning actor, an influential TV celebrity – there's no doubt about it, Frank Sinatra was 'big' at whatever he chose to do

FRANCIS ALBERT SINATRA, 'Ol' Blue Eyes', may have been the single most important entertainment figure of the 20th century. In Barry Levinson's movie Diner (1982), the 1950s youths who hang out in an all-night cafe hotly debate the question of who is the greatest, Sinatra or Mathis. With all due respect to Johnny Mathis, whose records are recommended for 'making out' to, it's no contest. As the argument's winner demonstrates, Sinatra was big in everything he put his mind to – he was big on radio, on records, in movies, on television, in nightclubs, in gossip columns. He even got close to being big in politics, through his links to prominent, showbizzy administrations from the Democrat John F Kennedy to the Republican Ronald Reagan.

Born in 1915 in Hoboken, New Jersey, the son of Italian immigrants, the reedy kid soon won a ticket to stardom by virtue of his crooning ability. He began as a front man for the Harry James and Tommy Dorsey bands – his first film parts, in Las Vegas Nights (1941), Ship Ahoy (1942) and Reveille with Beverly (1943), are just singing gigs – but struck out as a solo vocalist and became, well before Elvis or the Beatles, the first real singing sensation whose appeal was purely to teenagers. The 'bobby-soxers' of the day idolized Sinatra and the skinny kid thus became a hate figure for a great many young men with Sinatra-struck girlfriends. His first real film vehicle was Higher and Higher (1944), a breezy confection. But unlike almost every teenage sensation to come, Sinatra stuck around – he scored hits in more decades than any other artist, his Songs for Swinging Lovers essentially defined the record album, his TV specials shaped the medium, a great many of his renditions of popular songs eclipsed any other recordings of the same material, and he progressed from hit musicals (On the Town and High Society) to important dramatic roles (From Here to Eternity, for which he won an Oscar, and The Manchurian Candidate). Plus, he found time to be married to successive generations of sex symbols, Ava Gardner and Mia Farrow, and to run around with the Las Vegas-based bunch of hipsters who became known as the Rat Pack (Dean Martin, Peter Lawford, Sammy Davis Jr).

From the Rat Pack period there came Ocean's Eleven, Robin and the 7 Hoods and Sergeants 3 – films made purely so the guys could get together and party, bouncing gags off each other as they did in their anarchic nightclub acts. Ocean's Eleven is the pick of the litter – a heist comedy currently being remade by Oscar-winning director Steven Soderbergh with George Clooney (close, but no cigar) in the Sinatra role, which is one of the first glossy, guilt-free, ironic-ending crime movies. Only Sammy sings, but that's probably enough.

Sinatra still managed hits in the 1960s and 1970s, survived jokes about mob ties and hairpieces and endless retirement concerts, not to mention truly dreadful movies (Dirty Dingus Magee and Cannonball Run II). When he died in 1998, the Empire State Building was lit blue in tribute.

PRUNELLA SCALES

What's your favourite film and why?

The one that I remember most is the classic French black and white movie Les Enfants du Paradis (1945). Set in 1840s Paris, it's an epic tale featuring one of the legends of the French stage, Jean-Louis Barrault, as Baptiste Debureau, the greatest French mime artist and creator of Pierrot.

Who's your favourite movie actor?

Another French master, Gérard Philipe. He was a huge star of 1940s and 1950s French cinema, including the 1959 original of Les Liaisons Dangereuses, which was subsequently remade several times.

What's your first memory of the cinema?

Seeing Disney's Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs. I was taken by my mother and father to the Embassy Cinema in Dorking. I was so frightened when the witch appeared that I had to be taken out of the cinema. It had a lasting effect on me. I still know most of the dialogue.

Which of the films that you've acted in are you most proud of?

Howards End, the Merchant-Ivory adaptation of EM Forster's novel tracing stifling class differences in turn-of-the-century England. I played the Schlegel girls' (Emma Thompson and Helena Bonham Carter) maiden Aunt Juley. I love Merchant-Ivory films and my son, Sam West, was also in it as Leonard Bast.

Prunella Scales can be seen as Sybil in Fawlty Towers on UK Gold. She is also on a national theatre tour of Rodney Clark's The External playing opposite her husband Timothy West.

THE FINAL COUNTDOWN

Parlour games

As Arsenal prepare for their first FA Cup Final appearance for three years, Ray Parlour hopes the game will be a memorable one. Interview: Neil Martin

HARD-WORKING Arsenal midfielder Ray Parlour is hoping that 12 May at the Millennium Stadium, Cardiff, will be as perfect as 16 May at Wembley back in 1998.

That was the day that Arsenal last lifted the FA Cup, which completed the double, with Parlour earning much praise for his outstanding performance in the 2-0 win over Newcastle.

'That has got to be my FA Cup highlight,' he admits. 'It had been a great season for me anyway and to finish it like that was just amazing.

'Everything about the whole day was perfect. The sun was shining, the team played well, the fans enjoyed it and we won the game.

'To lift the FA Cup is one thing,' Parlour continues, 'but to win it to make it a double was superb and there was a massive party afterwards I can tell you!'

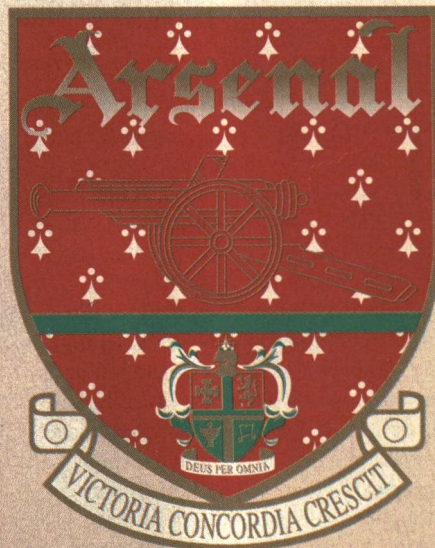

Parlour insists that despite the glitz and glamour of the Champions League and the Premiership, the players still hold the FA Cup in the highest regard.

And Parlour is confident the first final to be played away from Wembley for 79 years (excepting replays) will be a huge success.

'This season will be the first final ever played at Cardiff and it would be superb to go there and be a part of history,' he says.

'I'm sure the atmosphere in the Millennium Stadium will be fantastic.

I saw the Worthington Cup Final and the noise and colour were unbelievable and for the FA Cup

I'm positive it will be even better.

'I don't think the FA Cup has ever lost its appeal and for a player, the games are always great to play in,' Parlour explains.

'Even going to places like Carlisle in the early rounds is good,' he insists, 'because it means you are playing different teams from different divisions, which makes it interesting.

'This season's competition has been great and there have been some fantastic games, such as West Ham's win at Manchester United and Tranmere's amazing comeback against Southampton.

'But the FA Cup is very important for the players anyway because it's a great competition with lots of history.'

Simon Johnson selects six memorable ties from this season's FA Cup

18 November 2000, first round Brentford 1 Kingstonian 3

Kingstonian, who were bottom of the Nationwide Conference at the time, pulled off one of the first big upsets of this season's competition by beating Brentford from the Second Division with two goals from Sammy Winston and one from Geoff Pitcher.

6 January 2001, third round Charlton Athletic 1 Dagenham and Redbridge 1

Since the Premiership came into existence, no top-flight team has been beaten by a non-league outfit, but the Daggers were just four minutes away from ending that record when a deflected shot from Charlton sub John Salako denied them victory.

28 January 2001, fourth round Manchester United 0 West Ham United 1

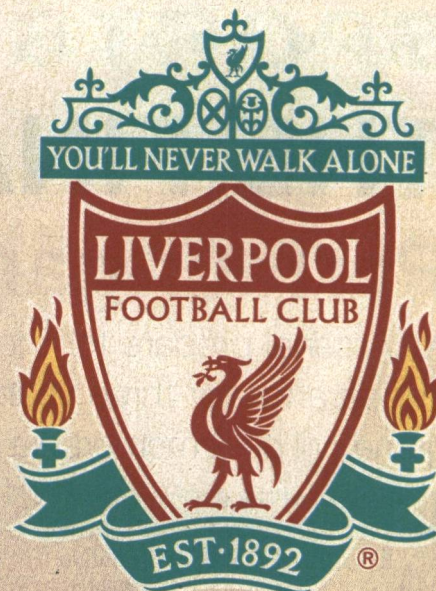

Paolo Di Canio ignored the home team's keeper Fabien Barthez's best attempts to put him off as he ran in on goal to score and send the favourites crashing out of the competition.

Murphy's law

Liverpool midfielder Danny Murphy explains why he's desperate to play a major part in the Merseysiders' quest for Cup glory. Interview: Jeremy Butler

THE LAST time Liverpool won a trophy was the lowest point of a tumultuous season for Reds midfielder Danny Murphy. Weeks before, his club manager Gerard Houllier had urged Sven-Göran Eriksson to pick Murphy for England and his four goals had helped Liverpool to the Worthington Cup final. But as the Reds scraped past Birmingham on penalties, Murphy was stuck on the sidelines nursing a damaged ankle and thinking about what might have been. He may have had similar thoughts while warming the bench during Liverpool's semi-final against Wycombe, but he came on in the 81st minute to play his part in a hard-fought 2-1 win over the Second Division battlers.

Understandably, the 24-year-old is champing at the bit to help drive Liverpool to their first FA Cup Final win since 1992.

He says, 'Playing will be an extra special feeling for me because I was injured and had to sit out the Worthington Cup final. That was a real blow as it was the first time I'd had a shot at a really big prize, and having done well in the early rounds I was hopeful of a good showing in the final.'

'But the one positive thing that came out of it was that I have got a real hunger to go back to Cardiff after witnessing that game.'

'I think there are always going to be question marks because it's not at Wembley, but the atmosphere at the Millennium Stadium was unbelievable, and I don't think people quite understood what an occasion that game was.'

Murphy admits Liverpool have already earmarked French international striker Thierry Henry as Arsenal's dangerman, even though he lacked his usual dynamism in the semi-final at Old Trafford, when his fellow countrymen Patrick Vieira and Robert Pires scored the goals that sealed the 2-1 victory against Tottenham Hotspur.

Murphy says, 'I know our players feel that Henry is one of the best strikers in Europe. They are always worried about playing against him because he has fantastic pace and so much skill that he can skip past players as though they are not there.'

'He's similar to Michael Owen in the way he can leave defenders for dead and go on to score goals.'

Simon Johnson selects six memorable ties from this season's FA Cup

18 February 2001, fifth round Arsenal 3 Chelsea 1

In a lively encounter the holders Chelsea came out second best, with Arsenal super-sub Sylvain Wiltord scoring twice to ensure the Blues would end the season without a trophy.

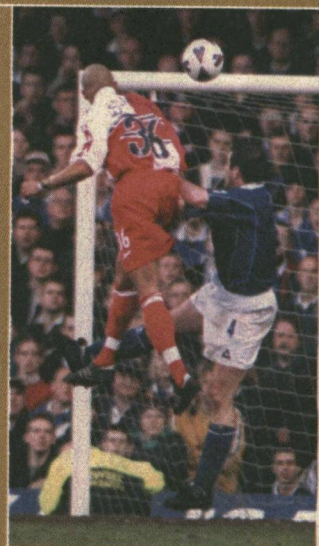

20 February 2001, fifth-round replay Tranmere Rovers 4 Southampton 3

In one of the greatest fightbacks in FA Cup history, Paul Rideout scored a second-half hat trick to help Tranmere come from three goals down at half-time to sensationally reach the quarter-finals.

10 March 2001, quarter-final Leicester City 1 Wycombe Wanderers 2

Little did Roy Essandoh know when he answered Wycombe's Teletext plea for strikers that he would be written into FA Cup folklore. For his injury-time header knocked out Leicester and put the Second Division club into the semi-finals for the first time.

Scream, Scream and Scream again

The 1996 smash Scream provided a much-needed shot in the arm for the moribund horror genre, as well as a welcome boost to the waning career of its director, Wes Craven. Written with great wit by Kevin Williamson, Scream was a perversely inspired anti-horror movie that playfully spoofed the conventions of the genre without shying away from the hard-core shocks. The concluding part of the resulting series, Scream 3, can be seen as the most daring of Craven's experiments with the genre, in that the director has succeeded in making a movie entirely about itself. A new masked murderer is on the loose, and he (or she?) is picking off the cast of Stab 3, the final part of the trilogy of fright films based on the characters and events depicted in the Scream movies. When the killer tracks down beleaguered series heroine Sidney Prescott (Neve Campbell), she decides to come out of her self-imposed hiding to help capture the culprit. We are never asked to believe in the characters and situations, as the in-jokes within in-jokes of the clever Russian doll script are forever reminding us that we are watching a film (something the poster for Craven's deeply disturbing 1972 debut Last House on the Left attempted to do with its famous tagline, 'To avoid fainting, keep repeating, "It's only a movie ... it's only a movie ..."'). It rarely reaches the horrific heights of the original, but it does score as a rather subversive comment on the Scream phenomenon.

Front Row, from Monday 7th, see listings for details

More than skin deep

Desmond Morris called us The Naked Ape, but in truth, we're the decorated ape – how many other animals on the planet actually beautify their skin with such things as make-up, tattoos and body piercing? The latter two have been around for thousands of years, in fact, which suggests they have played a key factor in our identity and development as a species. Today a navel piercing, or a tattoo of your wife's name in Sanskrit (David Beckham style), is virtually de rigueur, but the important and practical purpose with which our ancestors assigned to body modification has been lost, and both arts remain more subdued than they have been throughout much of human history. Perhaps the most telling point is that today's must-have body-changing 'art' is cosmetic surgery, and that doesn't even decorate us. It artificially creates a 'natural perfection'. This week Tattoo You debuts, a gritty and raunchy 13-part documentary series about the colourful characters involved in tattooing and body piercing at two London parlours.

UK Horizons, Wednesdays and Sundays from 9th, 11.00pm and 11.30pm

Rock 'n' roll dreams

Unless you've been asleep for the last few months, you have surely heard about Popstars' creation Hear'Say, who stormed to number one in March with their debut single Pure and Simple. It is officially the fastest-selling debut single ever, with just under 550,000 copies sold in the first week, a feat only topped by Sir Elton John's Candle In The Wind '98 and Band Aid's Do They Know It's Christmas? It seems all the more remarkable given that Noel, Myleene, Kym, Danny and Suzanne were total strangers just a few months ago. Straight after they heard the news about their number one single, the group took part in a live web chat, in which 30,000 questions were sent to them. Did any one dare to ask: 'Do you think the real reason why you've done so well, so quickly, is because of the huge amount of free coverage you've received on TV?' Let's face it, with that amount of exposure, success was guaranteed. This month VH1 plays host to a more realistic bands-trying-to-make-it show in Bands on the Run, which sees four unsigned bands compete for a shot at stardom. VH1 gives them a small helping hand, providing each band with a van and a string of gigs. Each group sets the price of its tickets and merchandise, and does what it can to raise its profile.

For a real, gritty rock-life-in-the-trenches feel we see the bands in their hotel rooms, and out on the road.

PUSHING TIN

Sky Premier 8.00pm

Mike Newell (Four Weddings and a Funeral) directs this comedy about a New York air-traffic controller (John Cusack) and his colleagues who thrive in the adrenaline-fuelled industry. When a newcomer (Billy Bob Thornton) joins their team, things come to a head.

THE DARLING BUDS OF MAY

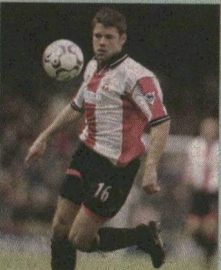

Granada Plus 10.00am

This adaptation of H E Bates's popular novels, depicting the idyllic Kent country life of the bounteous Larkin family, was Catherine Zeta-Jones's first big break. Who'd have thought she was destined for a 'perfick' family with Hollywood legend Michael Douglas?

Sky Premier 1.15am

Primary Colors sees John Travolta as a presidential candidate who finds it hard to keep his trousers on. Also starring Emma Thompson, Adrian Lester, Billy Bob Thornton and Kathy Bates, this is an excellent satire of American politics in the late 20th century.

GENERAL

SPIN CITY

Paramount Comedy Channel 9.30pm
Charlie Sheen steps into the shoes of Michael J Fox as New York City Deputy Mayor in the new fifth series of this award-winning US political satire. Starting as he means to go on, Charlie Crawford (Sheen) turns up late for his first press conference.

Sky Premier 10.05pm

Keanu Reeves stars as Neo, a computer hacker who sets out to discover the truth behind the legend known as The Matrix in this Oscar-winning sci-fi adventure. Excellent mind-boggling concepts (is existence on Earth 'real'?) and visually stunning special effects.

GENERAL

THE UNIVERSITY

UK Horizons 8.00pm

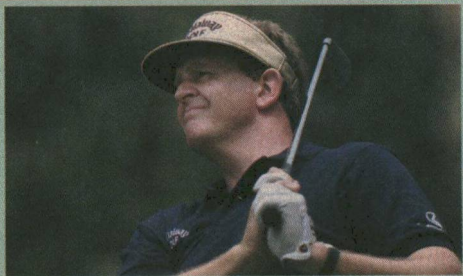

A new four-part documentary following the fortunes of three students at Sydney University. As well as charting the widely differing lives of Charles, Andrew and Cal, the series also documents the political and financial turmoil at this prestigious university.

Sky Premier 11.35am, 7.05pm
Ostensibly this is a kids' film, but it will appeal to everyone. Woody Allen supplies the voice of Z, a neurotic worker ant trying to express his individuality and break free of the totalitarian society of his ant hill. He's also trying to win over Princess Bala.

GENERAL

THE SIMPSONS

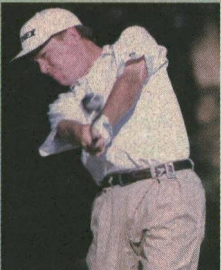

Sky One 6.30pm
Top US boy band 'N Sync jumped at the chance to take part in this new episode of the cult animated series from Matt Groening. Bart, Ralph, Milhouse and Nelson prepare to storm the charts after some tips from 'N Sync. Needless to say, it all goes horribly wrong.

Coverage of day one of the three-day Vodafone Challenge match between Derbyshire and Pakistan at the County Ground. The host side have much to gain financially from Pakistan's visit to England, and should take the opportunity to learn from some of the finest spin bowlers around. Off-spinners such as Pakistan's Saqlain Mushtaq (pictured, right) and Derbyshire's Rob Bailey (pictured, left) could hold the key if conditions are right, but the visitors will have to adapt quickly to the English conditions.

LPGA GOLF: CHICK-FIL-A CHARITY CHAMPIONSHIP SKY SPORTS 2 1.00PM

A tournament purse of $1.2 million which includes a first-place prize of $180,000 awaits the top field of women golfers as they travel to the Eagle's Landing Country Club in Stockbridge, Georgia, for the Chick-fil-A Charity Championship. The event, hosted by LPGA legend Nancy Lopez, was won last year by Sophie Gustafson, who finished two strokes ahead of Kelly Robbins and Amy Fruhwirth. This year, Gustafson will have to pull out all the stops to fend off on-form opponents such as Sweden's Annika Sorenstam (pictured).

GIRL RACER

Mayday! Mayday!

Hitting the road for Bank Holiday weekends needn't mean hours of boredom. Vicki Butler-Henderson explores the latest hi-tech in-car entertainment

AT LONG LAST, the Bank Holiday season has come again. Like buses, we wait all winter for one, only to be given two of the things in just one month: 7 May and 28 May.

But, boy, do we know how to make the most of them. Well, in theory at least. Our good intentions of spending an extended weekend with the family and 'getting away from it all' usually result in 72 hours of heated discussions conducted on the M4, crammed in a car. It's sad, but too true.

Even when some of us try to be cunning as foxes and head for the motorways on the Thursday night, we still get caught up in the jams. Children cry, 'Are we nearly there yet?' as passenger boredom sets in just ten miles down the road from home!

But fear not any longer, because there are now dozens of in-car gadgets to entertain family members of all ages for hours – days, even.

My favourite choice for in-car entertainment is one of the most basic, and probably the cheapest – the spoken word cassette or CD, because of the massive selection of books (fiction and non-fiction), sitcoms and stand-up comedy available. They really do keep the mind occupied and seem to munch up a load of miles as if by magic. At around £8-£12 a throw, they're well worth the peace!

Another idea for family harmony is to ask the kids to choose some 'family-friendly' music CDs or tapes for the trip, as these will always result in a good sing-a-long.

And that's always a laugh. If you do have an awkward, non-participating member, you could always plug them into their own personal, portable Walkman or Discman.

If your car stereo system doesn't have an in-built CD player, then you can plug a portable player into the radio head unit with a £20 adaptor kit. (Not every car has a socket for this, though.) This means the techno-junkie family can record a unique music album by randomly downloading tunes from a PC onto a 'memory stick' (a chewing gum-sized bit of technical wizardry), which then plugs into a tiny portable player. These cost from around £160-£300 and give excellent quality.

A more expensive – but more entertaining – option is portable DVD players, which cost between £700 and £1400. These can be adapted to plug straight into the car's cigarette lighter so you don't need to fill the boot with DVD batteries.

If you're really feeling flush, Sony has just launched a product to put an end to in-car boredom for good. It's a lap-top-sized TV screen that, when fitted to the car's roof lining, flips down for back-seat passengers to enjoy films.

Connected to a DVD player (and headphones, of course!), the kids can watch a multitude of movies without disturbing you at the wheel. Add in a games console and they'll be too busy wiggling their thumbs (as opposed to twiddling them) to notice their slow-moving surroundings.

With so much in-car entertainment on offer, it seems silly to leave the garage at all for the forthcoming Bank Holidays!

LIVE FORD GOLF USA: VERIZON BYRON NELSON CLASSIC SKY SPORTS 2 9.00PM

The TPC at Four Seasons, Las Colinas in Irving, Texas, welcomes the US PGA Tour for the $4.5m Verizon Byron Nelson Classic. Jesper Parnevik (pictured) returns to defend his title. The competition has seen 15 play-offs in its history, including one last year which involved a thrilling three-way contest between Parnevik, Davis Love III and Phil Mickelson. The Swede carried off the $720,000 first prize which has risen to $810,000 for this year's tournament. Parnevik will also be encouraged by his Honda Classic victory in March.

Ross Burden
OUT AND ABOUT

Home, sweet home-made

Making your own jam is not only a healthy option, says Ross Burden, it will also impress your friends

FUNNY old thing, the fame game. When you don't have a best-seller or a fitness video to tout about the chat shows and wait for resulting sales, how do you know you're making progress?

One way is to see your surname evaporate in the celebrity first name game. When you're really a household name, you just have one name, as in Dale (Winton) and Babs (Windsor). Do you think they sign their credit card slips like Elizabeth R (Windsor – no relation to Babs, of course)?

In a weird, Celebrity Big Brother stalker sort of way, I've had my path crossed by two such stars recently.

While queueing for sushi I saw Vanessa, and we whiled away the afternoon gossiping, as the gnashing of chopsticks obscured our voices to all but the closest 100 diners!

The very next day at a showbiz family christening, I bumped into Anthea. I can't help but think that Messrs Eubank and Duffy are hiding behind every corner ...

The food world is full of mono-named celebrities, from Jamie to Delia. And the best place to see the great and the good of the food world rattle their pans and get jiggy with Percy Pepper and Sally Salt is the 'new' channel: Taste CFN (formerly Carlton Food Network). This, the love child of Carlton and a major supermarket, is the new kid on the block, with plenty of brand new programmes; it seems they're commissioning a new show nearly every day!

There'll be funny lady Helen Lederer, cooking with kids, Mr Lesley Ash, Lee Chapman, wandering through the sands of Tunisia, and Marguerite Patten and guests reminiscing through 50 years of her telly career.

I'll be spending September touring France in search of top local foods and their traditions. It's hell, dear viewers, but we do it for you!

To spread the goodness of Taste CFN throughout the land, I recently took breakfast to 50 magazines, ably assisted by the lovely Renae from the channel.

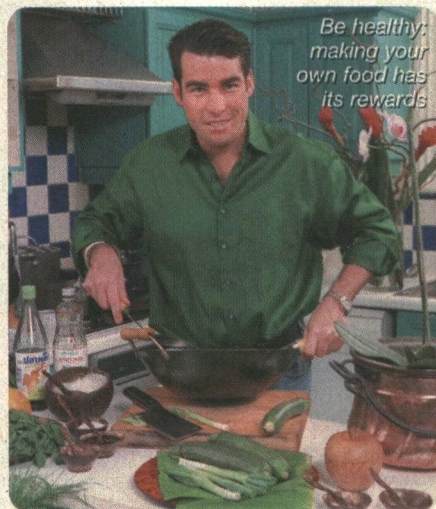

I made up hampers of croissants and muffins and, to sweeten the load, I added Veuve Clicquot and home-made jams. That put a smile on faces!

Free champagne at breakfast is a tasty idea and the swoop for the home-made jam made the attack of Hitchcock's The Birds seem tame! It takes organization, but when summer arrives, a little effort can make you enough jam for the year. Not only does it taste good, you know what went into it – no colourings or flavourings.

If you're lucky enough to grow your own food, giving a little away makes a really special gift.

'Not only does it taste good, you know what went into it'

Catch Ross in Superchefs on Taste CFN, 1.30pm, Wednesday 23rd

GET YOURSELF INTO A JAM!

1.25kg raspberries – fresh or frozen
1.5kg sugar
Juice one lemon
50mls Kirsch (cherry spirit) optional

Put all the ingredients in a large pan and heat gently so the juices run and the sugar dissolves.

Raise the temperature and boil for five minutes. Dab a little onto a cold saucer – when the jam is cold (about one minute) push with your finger to see if a skin has formed. If it has, it will set, so pot into clean jars.

If there is a scum on the jam, spoon off and add a knob of butter to dissolve it.

Do not add extra booze as it will retard the setting!

This makes about five jam jars.

RAGING BULL

FilmFour 10.00pm

GENERAL

JONATHAN CREEK

UK Gold 9.00pm

The floppy-haired inventor of magical tricks Jonathan Creek (Alan Davies), ably assisted by his journalist partner Maddy (Caroline Quentin), are on the trail of the killer of a best-selling horror stories writer. Expect the usual thrills and spills from the investigative duo.

From a whisper to a Screamer

A doom-haunted sci-fi thriller adapted from Philip K Dick's story Second Variety, Screamers benefits from the participation of Peter (RoboCop) Weller, who projects something of the rugged presence of The Dirty Dozen-era Lee Marvin. Set in the year 2078, it stars Weller as a senior officer of the Alliance, a federation of rebel miners and scientists locked in battle with the capitalist New Economic Block on the remote, war-ravaged mining colony Sirius 6B. Upon discovering that he and his comrades have been betrayed by the Alliance command, Weller and an affable rookie set off across the planet's desolate, radiation-polluted terrain headed for the NEB headquarters to negotiate an armistice. During the journey, it becomes clear that the real enemy is the eponymous superweapon unleashed by Alliance scientists: Screamers are self-replicating and self-modifying swords that thunder along barely below the ground, flying out to kill anything with a pulse. The more advanced models take convincingly human form and cruelly play on the emotions of their flesh-and-blood counterparts – one type is a sweet little boy, another a wounded soldier begging for help. Director Christian Duguay makes impressive use of a modest budget and impresses with such inventive and memorable images as that of an army of identical, teddy bear-hugging kids (actually Screamers) shuffling out of a bunker. FilmFour, Sunday 13th, 10.00pm

That's a wrap

As The Mummy Returns enjoys its big-screen premiere this week, The History Channel fittingly unwraps the mysteries of ancient Egypt with The Pharaohs, a five-day trek into the lives of such enigmatic rulers as the renowned Tutankhamun. The irony is that Tut, the 12th king of an 18th dynasty, ruled unremarkably, owing to the fact that he was a mere boy, just eight or nine years old, when he began his reign; older officials were the real rulers. Around ten years later Tut died, and like all pharaohs, he was buried in the Valley of the Kings, but was largely forgotten for the next 3300 years. Now, of course, no pharaoh is better known, and it's all down to the discovery of his fabulously rich tomb, which, having been lost under the mud brick houses of the workmen who opened Ramesses VI's tomb, was perfectly protected from grave robbers. Indeed, it was his little-known status that contributed to the successful hiding of his tomb. Unearthed in 1922 by British Egyptologist Howard Carter, the tomb and mummified body were found virtually intact, and hailed as one of the greatest archaeological discoveries of the century. The boy-king still lies in a solid gold coffin within the burial chamber, and the tomb remains a golden treasure-trove – though many of the priceless artefacts have been moved to the safety of the nearby Egyptian Museum in Cairo and the Luxor Museum. There are, however, two unsolved mysteries remaining. Firstly, how did Tut die at such an early age? A dark-coloured lesion on his left cheek and a bone fragment in his skull suggest he was killed by a blow to the head, but who did it? All this and more will be unravelled in The Mysteries of King Tut. The second enigma concerns the series of deaths of people who were in some way connected to the tomb's discovery – was the curse of the Egyptian pharaohs to blame?

Biography: Howard Carter concludes the week, a fascinating look into Carter's search for the lost tomb and how he remained one of the few untouched by the 'curse'.

Just like that!

When Tommy Cooper died in 1984, the entertainment world was robbed of one of its most lovable funnymen. But gentle giant Cooper left behind a legacy of wonderful comic moments. A selection of hilariously (and intentionally) awful tricks, irrepressibly corny jokes and sublimely silly sketches can be enjoyed all over again on Granada Plus this week.

LIVE FA CUP FINAL: ARSENAL V LIVERPOOL SKY SPORTS 2 12NOON

It's time for memories of 1971 as Arsenal and Liverpool walk out at the Millennium Stadium in Cardiff today for the first ever FA Cup Final to be staged outside England. Thirty years ago the London side beat Liverpool in the FA Cup Final at Wembley and also won the Double. Today, these two top Premiership sides should provide us with another match to remember, not least because of the attacking flair of players, including Gunner Thierry Henry (pictured, left) and Liverpool's Robbie Fowler (pictured, right).

The Springfield popstars

Simpsons fans NSync were thrilled to star in an episode with America's first family.

Jenny Eden finds out from series writer Tim Long how it all happened

BART SIMPSON and his mates must be the most unlikely recruits for a squeaky clean boy band. But a showbiz make-over can work wonders, and who better to show them the ropes than one of America's biggest boy bands, NSync.

The lads are the latest big name stars to be turned into yellow cartoon characters and visit Springfield. They play themselves as Bart's band, the Party Posse, go head to head with them for chart success in the episode New Kids on the Blech.

The Simpsons bosses asked NSync to help when they came up with a cheeky story-line poking fun at boy bands.

Writer and supervising producer Tim Long says: 'They said they'd be thrilled to do it because they'd all been Simpsons fans since they were about nine.'

'We'd already come up with the idea of doing a show about boy bands and we went to them first because they are the most successful in America.'

'There were a lot of jokes in the script poking fun at boy bands, but they took it very well. We made a joke out of the way a lot of boy bands are manufactured. And there was one gag about having a machine to make boy band's flat voices sound beautiful, but they just laughed.'

The band – Justin Timberlake, Lance

Bass, JC Chasez, Joey Fatone and Chris Kirkpatrick – dropped into The Simpsons studios to record their parts before playing a massive sell-out gig in Los Angeles.

Although the visit was meant to be top secret, Tim admits the news of the boys' arrival leaked out fast.

He says: 'It was all meant to be very hush-hush, with just a few members of staff knowing they were coming, but by the time they arrived there was this huge army of girls all aged about 11 who appeared from nowhere to see them.'

'It was incredible. We've had U2 recording at the studios, but it was nothing like this. It was one of the most popular recording sessions we've ever had here.'

'But NSync are so huge in the States at the moment and they have a really strong following.'

Despite their success, the boys from NSync took the gentle mickey-taking well and even asked for some Simpsons goodies to take home.

'They couldn't have been nicer and they were all very talented,' says Tim. 'They worked really hard and they were quite happy to take suggestions about how we wanted the lines to sound.'

'Because the animation is done after the voices they didn't get to see what they would look like as Simpsons characters, but I think the drawings were very flattering.

'They got off lightly in that way, but we did give them some very silly lines – they took it all in their stride.'

In the story, Bart, Milhouse, Ralph and Nelson are talent spotted by a passing record producer to form the latest boy band sensation.

With expert grooming, the Springfield kids are turned into pop stars ready to take on the charts – and rivals NSync.

But before they start to reap their pop millions a plot to use their music for more sinister purposes is uncovered.

As well as writing the episode, Tim, who started his career as a writer on the Late Show with David Letterman, worked with a song writer to come up with suitable boy band songs for Bart and the gang. Then a real band was brought in to record the tracks. In the show, Bart and the boys' voices are altered to make them sound tuneful.

Tim says: 'It would be very nice if we had a hit with Bart's record, but I don't think NSync need to worry about us.'

A star is shorn

NOT every woolly grass-grazer decides to set off for a life in the big smoke. But this is a sheep baa none. He is pursued by the diabolical General Specific for use in his sheep-powered ray gun and only this cute little creature will do. When Sheep decides to escape the claws of General Specific, and the overbearing Farmer John, he heads for the Big City in search of urban culture. Despite the wacky nature of the cartoon, the creator of Sheep in the Big City, Mo Willems, tells Cable Guide:

'Hopefully you care about the characters. While they are ridiculous and they do insane things, people will be able to see a little bit of themselves in there.'

And if watching the series fires up your creative ambitions, here's Mo's advice: 'Draw every day and write every day. Don't be embarrassed to make mistakes, or write bad jokes. Pretty much all I do is write bad jokes!'

Sheep in the Big City, Cartoon Network, Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays, from 4 May, 7.00pm

Farmer John

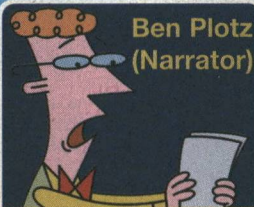

The neurotic Farmer John adores his flock so much he leads regular therapy sessions for them. He is distraught when Sheep leaves.

General Specific

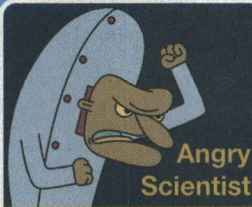

If anyone is a prime candidate for Farmer John's therapy group, this is he. Mo says: 'Specific is a bit of a spoiled child who gets everything he wants.'

Ben Plotz (Narrator)

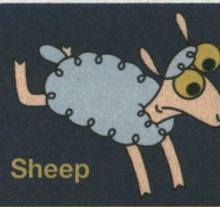

'I thought it was really funny to have this character who hates the script,' says Mo. 'Having a crazy narrator makes the world seem more real.'

Angry Scientist

Voiced by Mo, he says: 'My parents are Dutch and they have these really outrageous accents. It's kind of a parody of them.'

Sheep

'Sheep is really an everysheep,' explains Mo. 'He sort of suffers the same indignities as we do. He's a bit of an optimist.' Getting a flat and a job - easy!

WIN!

Courtesy of Cartoon Network, we have ten bleaterrific Sheep in the Big City goody packs to be won. No, we're not pulling the wool over your eyes! Just tell us how many times you see Sheep on this page (not including the prizes), and you could win a Sheep T-shirt, baseball cap, wallet, toy and a PlayStation game called Sheep (from Empire Interactive, on sale in all good game shops).

WIN! Little Mermaid II DVDs and videos

Life 'under the sea' hasn't been the same since the beautiful mermaid Ariel traded in her fins for life on land with handsome Prince Eric. But with the birth of their daughter, that all changes. In this fun-filled adventure we meet the beautiful Melody who takes after her doting mother, Ariel. They are joined by the lovable Flounder and Sebastian, and together they fight to defend the seas.

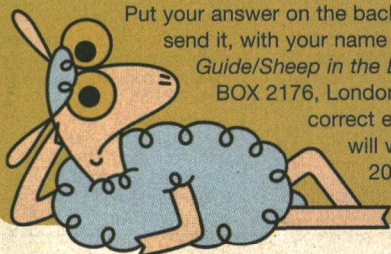

Released on 21 May, we have five DVD copies of Little Mermaid II: Return to the Sea (Cert U, RRP £19.99) and five video copies (RRP £15.99) to be won, courtesy of Disney. To enter, answer this question:

What is Ariel's daughter called?

Send your answer on a postcard to Cable Guide/Little Mermaid II competition, PO BOX 2176, London W1A 5TW. Please specify on your entry a preference for DVD or video. The first ten correct entries drawn will win. Closing date: 31 May 2001. Full Cable Guide rules on page 53.

Put your answer on the back of a postcard and send it, with your name and address, to: Cable Guide/Sheep in the Big City competition, PO BOX 2176, London W1A 5TW. The first ten correct entries drawn at random will win. Closing date: 31 May 2001. Full Cable Guide rules on page 53.

EURO SENIORS GOLF: EURO SENIORS TOUR - AIB IRISH SENIORS OPEN SKY SPORTS 2 7.00PM, 3.30AM

The best of Europe's senior golfers converge on the Powerscourt Golf Club at Enniskerry in County Wicklow for the AIB Irish Seniors Open. The man to beat could be the American Bruce Fleisher (pictured), who returns to defend the title he took last year along with the 47,000 euros first prize. Fleisher clinched victory with a seven-under-par aggregate of 209, three shots ahead of his compatriot George Burns and the Australian Bob Shearer, who tied for second place. The tournament purse totals 315,000 euros.

Girl power!

MOVE over Ash, Goku, Trowa and Tenchi – Sakura is in town! Cardcaptors, a brand new animé series, premieres on Nickelodeon this month. And big it up for the girls, because this time the central character is a fabulous female!

Ten-year-old Sakura unwittingly lets loose the powerful Clow Cards after discovering them in an ancient and mysterious Clow Book. Little does she realize that she has magical powers, and it's up to her to return all the cards before they run riot around the world. Suddenly, that maths homework doesn't seem so daunting after all!

The guardian of the Clow Cards, a cute little creature called Kero who escapes from the Clow Book along with the cards, aids Sakura in accomplishing her mission. They are joined by fellow Cardcaptor Li, who, let's just say, doesn't immediately hit it off with Sakura.

Jocelyn Hamilton, executive producer of the English version of Cardcaptors, tells Cable Guide that Sakura often finds herself taken by surprise. 'She never knows when a Clow Card is about to appear, so she could be at school and then all of a sudden she senses that a Clow Card is near,' explains Jocelyn. 'The main four element cards are earth, wind, fire and water. Say there's an earthquake all of a sudden, that would be the earth card. She has to somehow come up with a way to capture that card.'

Forget snap and whist – card games have never been such fun!

Little at Large!

JONATHAN LIPNICKI has a mouse for a brother in this month's Front Row premiere Stuart Little (see pages 16, 17 for details), but he really wants to be an action star.

'I'd love to be in action movies like Bruce Willis and Harrison Ford,' says ten-year-old Jonathan, the bespectacled, spiky-haired Californian who rocketed to fame half his lifetime ago in the film Jerry Maguire, starring Tom Cruise. These days, Jonathan is very much in demand. Apart from co-starring in the forthcoming sequel to Stuart Little, currently filming in Los Angeles, he is frequently asked to present at various awards shows.

Stuart Little is the story of a New York family who adopt a mouse and treat him the way they would treat any child. Geena Davis and has a few problems with having a mouse for a brother, but Jonathan says his character in the film is not like him.

English actor Hugh Laurie play the adoring parents, and Jonathan is their human son, George. Understandably, George (and the family cat, Snowbell!)

'He was the opposite of me,' Jonathan says. 'He didn't smile a lot. I smile a lot and make jokes. I'm the class clown at school.' And, he insists, he doesn't want to be treated as anyone special, just 'a regular kid'.

Jonathan, who loves skateboarding, martial arts and basketball, says he has never had a girlfriend.

'I've heard when girls meet NSync and Backstreet Boys, they throw up on them and faint,' he says, with feeling. 'I wouldn't want to get thrown up on. I'm not really into girls. I'm going to wait until I'm 12.'

LIVE INTERNATIONAL CRICKET: WEST INDIES V SOUTH AFRICA SKY SPORTS 3 7.00PM

Cricket coverage from the Arnos Vale Ground, in Kingston, St Vincent, of the seventh one-day international between the West Indies and South Africa. This match should be a keenly contested affair, and the Windies will be hoping that top players, including the batting trio Brian Lara (pictured), Wavell Hinds and Chris Gayle, will make the difference against an experienced South African line-up, which should include the likes of Gary Kirsten, Herschelle Gibbs and Jacques Kallis.

THE LOST BOYS

Sky MovieMax 8.00pm

One of Joel Schumacher's early efforts, this 1980s hit is a who's who of actors of the decade. As well as Kiefer Sutherland in fine form, Jason Patric, Corey Feldman and Corey Haim star in this pre-Buffy teen vampire flick, in which a bloodsucking gang terrorises a Californian town.

GENERAL

TURNING POINTS IN HISTORY: THE WALL

The History Channel 9.00pm

Historical events that have changed the world forever are the subject of this fascinating new documentary series. Today's topic is the extraordinary construction of the Berlin Wall, which came to symbolise the Cold War.

The SAPHIRE CRYSTAL

Watch

Distinctive design and striking good looks... exclusively from Brooks & Bentley

of 8 1/2" (21.5cm) in length.

Inspired by the power and energy of crystals and the refined sophistication of classic watch design, the master jewellers of Brooks & Bentley are proud to announce The Sapphire Crystal Watch, an inspirational new timepiece exclusively created for the man who appreciates the finer things in life.

With a sensational blend of innovative and precision styling The Sapphire Crystal Watch combines the handsome charm of a metallic sapphire blue dial, ablaze with radiant cubic zirconia gemstones to stunning effect. As you can see, the faceted stainless steel wristband embodies state of the art sapphire blue ceramics giving the watch a distinctive gleaming character all of its own. Then for the perfect finishing touch The Sapphire Crystal Watch is fully complemented by a Swiss quartz movement and sapphire crystal glass held within a polished tungsten bezel and water resistant to thirty metres.

Available at the special introductory price of just £148.00*, The Sapphire Crystal Watch can be paid for in ten interest-free monthly instalments for your convenience.

In addition, each breathtaking new timepiece comes complete with its own luxury presentation case and a Certificate of Authenticity attesting to its status as a Brooks & Bentley classic.

To experience the distinguished splendour of The Sapphire Crystal Watch, please telephone our 24 Hour Express Order Line on 0870 444 0011 today to secure your order. Or if you prefer, simply complete and return your Reservation Form below by 10th June, 2001.

You need send no money now.

	LIVE FORD GOLF USA: MASTERCARD COLONIAL SKY SPORTS 2 9.00PM Play continues on day two of the MasterCard Colonial at the Colonial Country Club in Fort Worth, Texas. Last year saw Stewart Cink falter at the final round to allow Phil Mickelson (pictured) to move up and take the title on the 17th hole. At stake for this year's top-class field is a $4m purse, with $720,000 for the winner. If Mickelson is to successfully defend his title then he will have to overcome the likes of Tiger Woods, Robert Allenby, Jesper Parnevik, Notah Begay and Hal Sutton. Bruce's color bind

An overheated whodunnit remembered, if at all, for an explicit underwater sex scene, Color of Night tells of troubled therapist Bill Capa (Bruce Willis), whose 'harsh words' drive a disturbed female patient to leap through his office window to her death on the New York street below. The shock of witnessing the incident leaves him unable to see the colour red ('It was the reddest blood I ever saw ... pooled around her green dress'), so he shuts down his practice and heads off to LA to stay with his old friend, Dr Bob Moore (Quantum Leap star Scott Bakula). Moore has been receiving death threats, which he suspects are being sent by one of the patients (including Lesley Ann Warren, Brad Dourif and Lance Henriksen) in his Monday-night therapy group. When Moore meets a bloody end, Capa takes on the group and embarks on some sleuthing into his new patients' pasts. He is soon forced to fight rattlesnakes and dodge cars that fall from multi-storey car parks, but still manages to engage in a torrid affair with the mysterious Rose (Jane March). Built around one of cinema's least shocking twists, Color of Night is melodrama at its most lurid. But enter its silly spirit, and it's difficult not to enjoy. Director Richard Rush has proceedings thunder along to the delirious denouement atop a factory tower, and the film is also the frankly undeserving recipient of Dietrich Lohmann's atmospheric photography.

Carlton Cinema, Saturday 19th, 10.00pm

Buried alive

A common phobia, the very thought of which sends chills down the spines of many people, is that of being buried alive. It's certainly the stuff of which horror movies are made, and the subject has been exploited to disturbing ends in films such as William Castle's Macabre (1958), Roger Corman's 1962 The Premature Burial (as well as his other Poe adaptations The Pit and the Pendulum and House of Usher), Italian director Lucio Fulci's City of the Living Dead (1980) and both versions of George Sluizer's The Vanishing (1988). It's also the bricks and mortar of urban legends. Heard the one about the old woman who died but her devoted husband insisted she was still alive, even when she was buried in the ground? Haunted by dreams about her clawing to get out of her coffin, the husband had his wife's body exhumed a week later, and to everyone's surprise her fingernails were bent backwards and there were obvious scratch marks from inside the coffin. This week Discovery dedicates a Sunday showcase to investigating such circumstances. Not exactly a cheery topic, but it certainly provides food for thought. Buried Alive: Mud Slides examines the kind of medical conditions that mimic death (coma, catatonia, certain poisons etc) and which have, and still occasionally do, lead to live burials. Following that, there's Great Quakes: Turkey, a programme about Turkey's catastrophic 1999 earthquake, one of the most devastating of the last century. The evening rounds off with Landslide: Gravity Kills, which focuses on the survivors of such terrifying acts of God.

Discovery Channel, Sunday 20th, from 8.00pm

A brand new series

Do you really not mind what kind of baked beans you eat? Of course you do, but why? This month Taste CFN looks at why we eat the things we do in its new series Brand Leaders. Rather than looking at that age-old question, 'Why do we snack on junk food rather than food that is good for us?' the programme will examine what makes us select one brand over another when it's all the same product. Apparently, it's all down to that little 'M' word – marketing. It's this that sells products and makes us think that Kellogg's goes with cornflakes like Walkers goes with crisps. Food historian Sara Paston-Williams and design and packaging expert Martin Andrews trace the history of some of the country's favourite food, looking at how different products are developed and marketed, how foods become brands, changing tastes and how one product becomes a 'brand leader'. That said, there is one point that really goes amiss here – that little 'T' word – taste. To say that marketing is everything, while our own taste buds are irrelevant is, if you'll pardon the pun, a little difficult to swallow.

Taste CFN, Wednesdays from 23rd, 8.30am and 5.30pm, repeated on Sundays at 12.00pm

TEST CRICKET: ENGLAND V PAKISTAN - FIRST TEST SKY SPORTS 3 8.30PM

A chance to catch up on all the day's highlights from Lord's as England take on the might of Pakistan on the third day of the first Test. The home team will be hoping for a repeat of their recent tour success in Pakistan and Sri Lanka, while the visitors will be looking to take out one of England's best hopes in the shape of Somerset opener Marcus Trescothick (pictured). The 25-year-old left-hand bat achieved his maiden Test hundred in February this year against the Sri Lankans in Galle.

For an instant decision, please call between 8am and 9pm Monday to Friday, or between 9am and 5pm at the weekend. If you do not require an instant decision, our lines are open 24 hours and applications can be taken at any time.

Typical Example: A loan of £13,000 borrowed over 4 years would be repayable by 48 monthly repayments of £319.15 commencing 3 months after your loan is issued. The total amount repayable, which includes the loan and interest is £15,319.20. 7.9% APR. *If you choose the optional courier service an additional charge of £45 will be payable. Delivery may take longer at weekends or in outlying areas. Paramount Bank loans are provided by Halifax plc. Paramount Bank is a trading division of Halifax plc. Registered office: Trinity Road, Halifax, West Yorkshire HX1 2RG. Registered in England No. 2367076. All loans are subject to status and are available to persons aged 18 and over only. You must be a UK resident to apply. Certain purposes of loan may be excluded. APR and repayment details are correct at the time of print. Written quotations are available on request. Usually, the APR depends on how much you borrow. For loans of £1,000 to £2,999 the APR is 15.9%, for loans of £3,000 to £4,999 the APR is 12.9%, for loans of £5,000 to £9,999 the APR is 10.9%, for loans of £10,000 to £12,500 the APR is 8.9% and for loans of £12,501 and over the APR is 7.9%. In certain cases, the rate you are offered may depend on our credit assessment procedures, your personal circumstances and other related factors. If you are in breach of your unsecured personal loan, we may set off any money you owe us against a credit balance on any other account you hold with us. A credit reference check will be carried out in respect of each applicant and, whether or not credit is granted, the agency will retain a record of each search for its own use. We may record and monitor telephone calls to help us provide a better service.

LAKE PLACID

Front Row, see listings for details
This is a comedy-horror in a similar vein to Arachnophobia, except this time the villain is a 30-foot man-eating crocodile at a peaceful Maine lake. It's up to a group of specialists (Bridget Fonda, Bill Pullman, Brendan Gleeson and Oliver Platt) to try and stop the giant reptile.

GENERAL

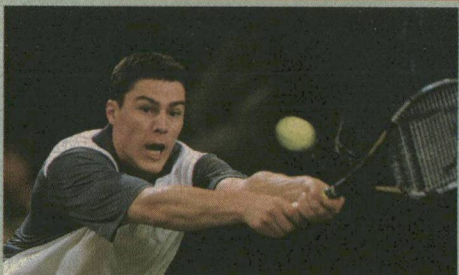

BRONX: CRIME AND JUSTICE: GUILTY OR INNOCENT

Discovery 9.00pm
A fascinating insight into the American judicial system, this documentary follows three Bronx defendants through their court cases. A father is accused of threatening people with a gun and an immigrant faces a mandatory sentence.

INSIDE SCOTTISH FOOTBALL SKY SPORTS 1 6.30PM, 11.30PM

With the Scottish Cup final taking place at Hamden Park this Saturday, Inside Scottish Football, hosted by Jim White will keep fans of football north of the border up to date with all the important news. The show will also review the action from the Scottish Premier League, which Celtic won last month. The Glasgow giants' successful season has in no small measure been due to Henrik Larsson (left in picture) who has been in scintillating form. In March's CIS Cup final, the Swede scored a hat trick in the Bhoys' 3-0 win over Kilmarnock.

REALITY BITES

The Studio 7.15pm

A hip comedy when it was released, Ben Stiller's directorial debut focuses on a group of directionless friends. Winona Ryder plays Lelaina, a recent graduate working at a local TV station, who must choose between staying true to her art or selling out to the overtly commercial Ben Stiller.

Solve this puzzle... you could win £300!!

- 1 Hopkins (Hannibal Lecter)
- 2 Connery (007)
- 3 Caine (in "The Italian Job")
- 4 Winslet (on the Titanic)
- 5 Zeta Jones (recently married)

Dear Reader

Here's a great chance to win £300 cash – with a second prize of £150 and a 3rd prize of £50!!

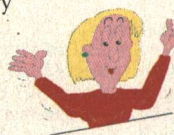

Just look at the clues above and enter the first names of the five famous British film stars in the grid. The letters in the shaded squares (down) will then spell out the name of a well-known film award. This shaded word is your answer. Just enter it in the coupon below and post it off to me...

More puzzles & more prizes!

But you don't have to stop there! Did you know that every month there are hundreds of big competitions you could enter, with THOUSANDS of fantastic prizes to win...

You could win a new video player, a state-of-the-art TV, or an exotic foreign holiday. You could even win a brand new car or £1,000,000 in cash. These prizes are all going for FREE. And our members are winning all the time!

Like M.H. from Bury: "I wanted to let you know my exciting news – I have won a Peugeot 206 car! When I found out I nearly had a heart attack with the shock!... So thanks for the support

Winner's Friend gives..."

And Ms L Spevik from Harrow: "I won a day at the London Fashion Week Catwalk, overnight dinner, limos, champagne flowing, and £1,000 to spend at Harvey Nichols. What a fabulous five days we had!"

These are people just like YOU. And now you could start winning too!

How YOU could be a winner

Let me tell you about a special offer which I'm sure you'll love. My name is Lizzie Riley, and I run a special club for people who love to enter competitions and win prizes – it's called Winner's Friend.

Every month we write up our Winner's Friend newsletter, and I have to say (though I don't like to boast) that our members think it's brilliant! We give you a round-up of all the latest competitions from around the country, with details of how to enter and lots of the answers. We also let you in on the inside secrets of comping, with advice from the experts, news from winning members, and loads of friendly letters and chat. There's everything you need to enjoy the fantastic 'buzz' of comping!

2 FREE BOOKS!

Here's your chance to get all the latest winning news and tips, by enrolling as a member of Winner's Friend now. For the discount price of just £6.75, we'll send you the next 3 monthly issues of the Winner's Friend newsletter, PLUS a FREE copy of The Essential Guide To Comping, and Tackle That Tie-Breaker. With all the inside information contained in our newsletter and these 2 FREE guides, you'll be way ahead of everyone else!

And for your peace of mind, we give you a cast-iron money-back guarantee. If you're not completely satisfied with Winner's Friend, you can claim a 100% refund at any time. All you have to do is call our helpful Customer Services team on 0207 447 4018, and we'll be happy to give you a refund.

An opportunity like this doesn't come often. So don't miss out on all the excitement of Winner's Friend – send off your cheque with the coupon below right away! (To the FREEPOST address – no stamp required). And don't forget your puzzle answer – you could soon be getting a nice fat cheque! Best wishes

	LIVE INTERNATIONAL FOOTBALL: ENGLAND V MEXICO SKY SPORTS 2 7.00PM Derby County's Pride Park is the latest venue to host an England international match as Sven-Göran Eriksson's men take on Mexico in a friendly. Will the Swede's success in reviving England's fortunes continue against the visiting Mexicans? Eriksson may decide to use it as another opportunity to experiment. Whatever his choice, it is likely to include the talents of Liverpool striker Michael Owen (centre in picture), who has proved himself very capable in recent outings for his country. Once upon a time in Raimi's West

The spaghetti Western homage The Quick and the Dead sees Sharon Stone's gunslinging sister ride into the lawless town of Redemption bent on settling an old score with tyrannical mayor Gene Hackman. The town is preparing for its annual quick-draw, shoot-to-kill rally – designed to bolster Hackman's fearsome reputation as well as allowing him to dispatch any dissidents, rivals or cocky new contenders – and Stone promptly signs on so that she may face her sworn enemy, thus propelling the film towards an explosive showdown. Hackman revels in his cruel character, a cartoonish riff on his Oscar-winning role in Clint Eastwood's Unforgiven, and Leonardo DiCaprio registers well in a supporting part as his son, a boastful pistolero called The Kid who insists on duelling it out with his father in the contest. Stone, meanwhile, carves out a tough and believably troubled anti-heroine, and the reason behind her seemingly cold-hearted quest for vengeance is explained via a series of atmospheric, sepia-toned flashbacks to a traumatic childhood incident – reminiscent of Sergio Leone's Once Upon a Time in the West. Director Sam Raimi draws with wit on the clichés of the Italian Western (the off-kilter angles; the grotesque close-ups of sun-scorched faces; the surreal soundscape of exaggerated noises) and the resulting helping of phoney Leone is a real fistful of fun.

Get your motor running ...

Whether you regard the longhaired, tattooed, Harley-riding, leather-clad Hell's Angels as knights of the road, or menacing rebels, they're here to stay. But where did they come from and what made them take to the roads with such vengeance? Premiering this week, Hell's Angels attempts to provide some answers, revealing that the original club were in fact a WW2 US squadron, who named themselves the 'Hell's Angels' following the 1930s Howard Hughes film of the same name. After the war, the thrill-seekers traded in their wings for motorbikes. That's one theory. But it's not the right one, according to Ralph 'Sonny' Barger, who fronts America's Hell's Angels. He says that the club formed around 1947-48, following a riot at a motorbike rally. After which, the American Motorcycle Association announced, '99 per cent of motorcyclists are law abiding citizens.' The Hell's Angels were soon dubbed (either by the media or by themselves) 'the one per centers', and many still wear patches today saying just that.

Let him entertain you

In just five years, Robbie Williams made the transition from boy band member to arguably the UK's most prominent media figure. Robbie left Take That after a string of disputes, and was a tabloid mainstay before he even embarked on his solo career. His rock 'n' roll lifestyle, and his expanding girth were rarely out of the news. His first solo album, Life Thru a Lens, released in 1997, was greeted warmly. But it was to be the next phase of Robbie's career that launched him to superstardom. The release of the anthemic single Angels confirmed his status as a true entertainer. With the release of his second album, I've Been Expecting You, and the singles Millennium, No Regrets and Strong, it seemed Robbie had arrived. VH1 celebrates the UK rock scene's cheekiest star this month with Robbie Williams Night; an entire evening of programming devoted to the singer. Among the highlights, you can reminisce with Take That: Live in Berlin, and catch the premiere screening of Robbie Williams: Music Express. This exclusive interview features Robbie talking candidly about his career. There's still more Robbie-mania with another premiere, Robbie Williams VH1 Special, chronicling the singer's rise to fame and his celebrity couplings.

LIVE SUPER LEAGUE: WAKEFIELD TRINITY WILDCATS V LEEDS RHINOS

Rugby league action from Belle Vue as Wakefield Trinity face a battle against powerful Super League rivals Leeds in this West Yorkshire derby. The Wildcats will be working hard to improve on their lowly 10th spot in last year's table but the powerful Rhinos, with the likes of their winger-turned fullback Francis Cummins (centre in picture), will be giving nothing away. The home team will look to Brad Davis and Willie Poching to help them extract revenge for the 42-14 defeat which Leeds inflicted upon them in March.

THE COMMITMENTS

Sky Cinema 10.00pm

Alan Parker's 1991 film about a group of wannabe rock stars in Dublin swept up four BAFTAs and won Best Soundtrack at the Brits. Based on Roddy Doyle's novel, the story follows Jimmy Rabbitte as he forms a rhythm and blues band. Look out for then-unknown Andrea Corr.

GENERAL

THE FIFTIES:

THE FEAR AND THE DREAM

The History Channel 8.00pm

A new series which reassesses this seemingly golden age in US history. In the 1950s, America was the richest nation on Earth and enjoyed an economic boom, but it was also an era of unprecedented political paranoia.

LIVE SUPERBIKE: WORLD CHAMPIONSHIP IN DONINGTON PARK

BRITISH EUROSPORT 9.30AM, 11.45AM, 3.30PM

Donington Park is the venue for the sixth round of the World Superbike Championship, and all eyes will be on home-grown British rider Neil Hodgson (pictured), who won here last year. The 27-year-old from Burnley, Lancashire, who also won the British Superbike Championship in 2000, can look forward to the encouragement of the crowd, but he faces tough competition from the likes of the Australian pair of Troy Corser and Troy Bayliss and the American Ben Bostrom, who started the new season in fine style.

THE PERFECT STORM

Front Row, see listings for details
 George Clooney stars as a fishing boat captain from Massachusetts, who heads out with his crew despite bad weather warnings, in this true story. But this is no ordinary storm. Mark Wahlberg and John C Reilly co-star in this special effects-laden adventure.

GENERAL

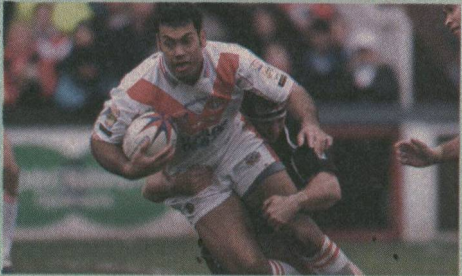

A ROOM WITH A FACELIFT

Discovery 10.00pm
 In Poland, facelifts come cheap. This documentary charts the facelift trips organised by Alina Deebie from England. Follow the fortunes of Chris, Sharon and Sue as they travel to Wrocław for surgery. Needless to say, cheap is not necessarily cheerful.

MISSION TO MARS

Front Row, see listings for details
Tim Robbins and Gary Sinise star in this sci-fi thriller. It's the year 2020, and the first successful manned mission to Mars has just been completed. But a mysterious storm wipes out all but one member of the crew. A rescue mission is launched to find out what happened.

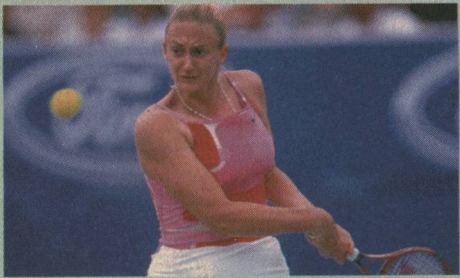

GENERAL

SILENT WITNESS

UK Gold 9.00pm
Playing a forensic pathologist handy with a scalpel, Amanda Burton is an unlikely heroine in this dark crime series. Today, she's not convinced by the accidental death of a drug user and her child, and soon discovers that there's a serial killer on the loose.

Presenting...

Hitching a Ride

by Paul Doyle

Actual size of plate is 8 1/4" in diameter.

A fine
porcelain
collector plate edged with 22 carat gold

"This lively little Westie had been playing in the park all morning," says artist Paul Doyle. "But he was getting tired, so his owner scooped him up and sat him in the basket on her bicycle. He made such an adorable hitchhiker, I just had to paint him!"

A family favourite - painted by a master artist

Beautifully composed, this portrait radiates the artist's love and understanding of his subject...that shiny black button nose...his bright eyes glistening beneath those bushy brows...his wavy white coat. And just look at the expression on his whiskered face! Snuggled in the basket, this cheeky rascal is clearly very pleased with himself!

Fine porcelain and precious 22 carat gold

Hitching a Ride has been preserved forever on a fine porcelain collector plate, exclusively for Danbury Mint. Each superb plate is delicately rimmed with a band of precious 22 carat gold for the perfect finishing touch and comes with a serially-numbered Certificate of Authenticity.

A collector's treasure - a perfect gift

Hitching a Ride will be a beautiful addition to your home, and is also the perfect gift. It can be yours for just £19.95 (plus postage and handling). We are so confident that you will be delighted with Hitching a Ride, we offer a full money-back guarantee. If you are not completely satisfied, simply return your plate within thirty days and owe nothing.

LPGA GOLF: LPGA CORNING CLASSIC SKY SPORTS 2 9.30AM, 1.00PM

A three-way play-off provided an exciting conclusion to last year's LPGA Corning Classic at New York's Corning Country Club. Betsy King (pictured), who had finished 12-under-par as joint leader with Kelli Kuehne and Vicki Goetze-Ackerman, prevailed by snatching victory on the second hole to deprive Kuehne of a chance to retain the Corning Classic crown she had won in 1999 - and earned $120,000 in the process. This year's tournament purse totals $900,000 with $135,000 going to the winner.

STARGATE: BACK TO THE FUTURE

I AM an extremely big fan of Stargate SG-1. Can you tell me when the new series will be shown? I can't wait!

Marie, e-mail

● A spokesperson for Sky One replies: 'Get ready to take that leap through the portal with the new fifth series, on Sky One this autumn.'

BADDIEL BOREDOM?

I'VE BEEN watching Baddiel's Syndrome since the start of its first season, and my guess is that it won't last a second.

The writing is one of the weakest links. As this 'comedy' clearly illustrates, Baddiel can't write. But even that doesn't mask the wooden performances by Baddiel and co. This is just another hollow vehicle to maintain Mr Baddiel's bewildering super ego. I applaud Sky for their attempt to create home-grown sitcoms, but you can't throw bags of cash at a painter and expect a masterpiece. On the upside, the show has given us a technical term for boredom: Baddiel's Syndrome.

Christopher Thomson,
Hamilton, Scotland

● A Sky One spokesperson responds: 'Many thanks for your comments. Despite your clear dislike for the show we are pleased you have stayed with it since the start and have felt compelled to write. In this way we gather a true measure of our viewers' mixed opinions about our programming. Appreciation of a comedy format is unavoidably subjective. However, you claim Mr Baddiel cannot write. But Baddiel's Syndrome has an impressive writing pedigree and it is co-written along with Peter Bradshaw and in collaboration with a list of contributors - including author Jane Goldman and her husband Jonathan Ross. Sky One is delighted that Baddiel's Syndrome has received critical acclaim; heat referred to it as 'the best British comedy series on TV ... a triumph'. The Guardian reviewed it as 'a very impressive new comedy'. We are glad you recognize Sky One is not afraid to take risks. We are committed to bringing viewers the best shows in both commissioned programming and US acquisitions. We will continue to experiment with new formats in order to fulfil our remit as the premier entertainment channel. We hope next time you think we are doing it right!

GREASE IS THE WORD

I REALLY enjoyed Behind the Music: Grease on VH1. It was great fun to watch, hearing about what went on after the cameras were turned off, like Jeff Conaway insisting on doing real 'hickies' on Stockard Channing (Rizzo) when they were supposed to be from his character, Kenickie. Plus just seeing the cast more than 20 years after it was made. When is VH1 planning to repeat this? I can't wait to see it again. Grease will always be the word.

Natalie Edmonds
e-mail

● VH1 tells us that Behind the Music: Grease will feature in both May (Saturday 19th and Wednesday 23rd, 10.00pm) and June. See listings or for more details visit www.vh1.co.uk.

THEY KINGDOM COME AGAIN ...

I WATCHED the first series of The 10th Kingdom [last Easter] on Sky One and I loved it. I have heard that the making of the second series is nearing the end of production. Does Sky One have any plans to show it?

Vicki Robinson, e-mail

● A spokesperson for Sky One tells us that they do hope to be able to show a second series, Vicki. So stay tuned for further information.

★ ARMCHAIR ENTHUSIAST

WHAT a comprehensive and entertaining channel British Eurosport is. While watching various sports, I feel I am there. It is great to be able to travel the world from one's armchair.

Edward Gambier, Dorset

● Congratulations, Edward, you've won £50!

TOO MUCH TALK SPOILS THE BROTH

I'M AN avid viewer of Carlton Food Network (which I note is now Taste CFN), but often get distracted by the interesting conversation taking place. Are the chefs, and others, chosen for their skills at cooking, or is it decided on their entertainment value?

Margaret Cooper
Birmingham

RETURN TO OZ

MANY THANKS to Sky One for showing Water Rats. My wife and I are confirmed Aussies and used to watch the series avidly on Channel 5. Its return to our screen is like being reunited with old friends, and it's great to see so many familiar Sydney sights again. We hope Sky One plans to show more of the series than Channel 5 did.

Mick Haven, Hampshire

● You'll be able to see the first two series of Water Rats, weekends on Sky One.

POPULAR REQUEST

DOES Sky One plan to show the awesome American high school drama Popular again?

Murray Horwits, e-mail

● Popular is not in the immediate schedule, but Sky One says possibilities are still open, so stay tuned for more details.

THE PRISONER FILE

IT IS GREAT to see The Prisoner back on our screens courtesy of Sci-Fi. The series has its own official appreciation society, in existence for 25 years. The star of the show, Patrick McGeehan, is our honorary president, and with over 1000 members, we are always pleased to answer queries about The Prisoner. Viewers can contact me for society details by sending a SAE to Six of One, Box 66, Ipswich IP2 9TZ.

Karen Langley, Ipswich

NOT LANDING

I WATCHED Knot's Landing on UK Gold until it ended recently. I've since found out more episodes exist, called Back to the Cul-de-Sac. Will these be shown?

Keith Hellend, e-mail

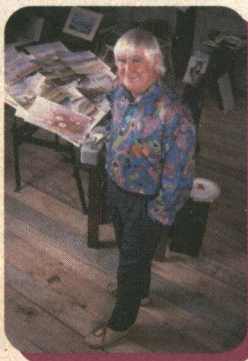

● A spokesperson for UK Gold replies: 'UK Gold tried to acquire the rights to Back to the Cul-de-Sac, the three-part mini series made after the TV series ended. However, the TV rights had been acquired by another channel.'

SIMPLY THE BEST

I AM an avid viewer of Simply Painting on Discovery Home & Leisure and watch it every morning. Is there a contact address or website where I could buy some Simply Painting merchandise?

G J Robbins, e-mail

● A Discovery Home & Leisure spokesperson replies: 'We're glad to hear you're a fan of Simply Painting with Frank Clarke [pictured below]. Merchandise can be obtained through the Frank Clarke website at www.simplypainting.com or by calling freephone 0800 018 2541, for viewers outside Ireland, or 1850 510810 for inside Ireland. And stay tuned for the sixth series of Simply Painting, airing weekday mornings throughout this month at 9.35am.'

- You can repay over 2, 3, 4 or 5 years
- The interest rate stays fixed over the loan period
- Your repayments are guaranteed to remain the same
- There is no complicated paperwork
- We have no administration fees
- Funds will be credited direct to your bank account
- You can apply 24 hours a day - 7 days a week
- No-one beats our commitment to personal service and customer care.

HOW DO I APPLY?

You are welcome to apply for a loan if you:

- do not have any County Court Judgments
- are aged between 22 and 65
- have a bank or building society current account
- are resident in the UK.

Call us free on 0800-2-15000. We'll ask a few more questions about your home, work, bank or building society, income and outgoings. And we'll usually give you a decision there and then. It's that simple.

WHAT'S A TYPICAL EXAMPLE?

For a loan of £5,000 repayable over 36 months, each monthly repayment would be £159.68. The total amount payable would be £5,748.48. APR 9.7%.

For your peace of mind, we offer a Repayment Protection Plan ('RPP'), which covers your repayments in the event of accident, illness or even redundancy.
